BRITISH SEVER TURK LINES ON GALLIPOLI; TAKE TOWN, REPORT

City at Neck of Peninsula on Dardanelles Captured From Turks, Says a Havas Dispatch From Athens

FRENCH PROGRESSING ON ASIATIC SIDE, REPORT

Thousands of Ottomans Taken Prisoners, Says Unofficial Report -- Turks However Claim Victory at All Points

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Marked progress apparently has been made by the allies in their efforts to win the Dardanelles by land operations. Reports are fragmentary and often conflicting, but they indicate the British have established two lines across the Gallipoli peninsula, on the European side of the Dardanelles, one near the tip, and the second at the other end, near the entrance to the Sea of Marmora.

Nevertheless, a decisive victory over the allied forces is announced by the Turkish war office. The statement, which is in direct conflict with advices from London and Paris, says all the troops which landed on the Asiatic and European sides of the straits except those at Gaba Tepe, near the tip of Gallipoli peninsula, have been driven away, and that several warships and transports of the allies have been damaged.

Advices from French and British sources give the impression that the landing forces are making marked progress. From these dispatches it would appear that the British have established two lines across the Gallipoli peninsula, which, if maintained, would cut off the Turkish forces from Constantinople. An unofficial report from Athens to Paris says the allies have captured the town of Gr[illegible] on the straits at the entrance to the Sea of Marmora. An official [illegible] from Berlin mentions heavy fighting at this point.

Havas Dispatch Says Gallipoli City Is Taken

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, April 30.—A Havas dispatch from Athens says the city of Gallipoli on the European side of the Dardanelles, near the entrance to the sea of Marmora, has been captured by the allies.

It also is said that the Turkish fort at Nagara, on the Asiatic side of the straits, has been bombarded heavily.

A London dispatch last night quoted the Athens correspondent of the London Express as saying Gallipoli had been occupied by the allies. An official statement today from the German general staff said there had been heavy fighting for two days at this town, but gave no indication as to the result.

Forty Warships Bombard Seddyal Bahr, Says Berlin

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN (By Wireless, Via London, April 30.)—The following official statement was issued late last night from the headquarters of the general staff:

"Reports from the Dardanelles pay tribute to the bravery and enthusiasm of the Turkish troops. In the first battle at Kum Kale the Turks did not fire a shot, but repulsed the enemy with the bayonet.

"Forty warships bombarded Seddul Bahr. While this battle was in progress the Turks captured a large quantity of rifles and ammunition.

"At Gallipoli the Turks fought uninterruptedly for two days against the combined attack of the enemy without showing fatigue.

"On the eastern and western fronts the situation, generally speaking, is unchanged. In the Upper valley of the Kemach-Tepe the enemy have been lively artillery duels in which our fire was very effective. The line of Osjer valley after many hours of artillery fire, vainly attempted a night advance against the heights held by our infantry."

Graphic Story of Fighting For Possession of Straits

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, April 30.—Serious damage to the Turkish fortifications resulted from the bombardment by an allied fleet which was carried out simultaneously by the British and French in the Dardanelles Monday, according to the Chronicle's correspondent, who thus describes the operations:

"The bombardment grew terrific about midday. British and French ships were clearly visible from the entrance to the straits. The largest warships lay at the entrance near the European side with others in Krenkeui Bay, firing heavily on Kaba and Kum Kale and Seddul Bahr. In the distance several small ships directed the fire of the large ships on the Chanak and Killd Bahr forts.

"The noise of the guns was continuous, the discharges frequently reaching twenty a minute.

TROOPS LANDED SAFELY.

"Away to the left stretched the line of transports which effected landings late in the afternoon on the coasts opposite and on the peninsula. The effect of the naval bombardment evidently was severe. Tall columns of smoke and fire were seen on the heights above Seddul Bahr, Kephez Point and Chanak Bay. By 5 o'clock the Seddul Bahr fort seemed utterly knocked to pieces and the battleships moved further in, indicating that all serious opposition on the shores up to the ravine had been definitely battered down. The Turks made little attempt to reply to the warships.

"Shortly after 6 o'clock the Turks provided a diversion at Cape Helles, where the allies had landed a battery early in the morning. A Turkish battery came into sight, moving into position to attack this landing force, but before the Turks could open fire one of the warships turned its attention to them and found the range at the first shot, burying the battery in a cloud of

"Atlanta has never seen such an opera setting as will be given in 'The Magic Flute' Saturday afternoon," said Loomis Taylor, of the Metropolitan, Friday. Mr. Taylor is stage manager for the, German operas, and one of his biggest jobs is handling the carloads of scenery and other "effects" for the Mozart work.

"The Metropolitan gives it a most ornate setting," said Mr. Taylor, at the Terrace. "It is different from that of other productions, which lay the scene in the Egyptian period, while we place it in the Assyrian period—if you know what that means" (which we didn't).

"Several of the scenes were painted from photographs made by the German crown prince when he paid a visit to India some years ago. The prince photographed some of the ancient temples, and when he returned he gave the photos to Kautzsky, the noted scenic painter of the Berlin Royal opera, who also does work for the Metropolitan. They're most beautiful.

"The opera is as splendid from a spectacular point of view as from a musical standpoint," continued Mr. Taylor. "It is given in fourteen scenes, some of them being changed in thirty seconds or less. It requires a vast amount of scenery and properties, including a great snake and an elephant. The elephant is acted by two men, and I defy you to say he isn't a real one. He was promoted from the hind legs to the front legs. It was an honor, I assure you.

"The appearance of Mme. Hempel as the Queen of the Night is a beautiful effect. She comes down from the skies on a machine, with great wings fluttering and diamonds sparkling like stars in her robe of dark blue chiffon."

Johannes Sembach, considered one of the greatest of German tenors, has arrived to take Mr. Tamino, and Otto Goritz, the popular German baritone, will reach Atlanta Friday afternoon. Mme. Melanie Kurt will have the great role of Pamina, and the cast will include scores of leading singers.

Atlanta Masons are taking great interest in "The Magic Flute" which was originally written as a defense of Freemasonry, and which contains much symbolism of especial interest to the fraternity. Several hundred Scottish Rite Masons and Pacific members of the Mystic Shrine will attend the opera.

FEDERAL TRADE BOARD IS BUSY WITH ORGANIZATION

Date for Hearings on Foreign Trade Conditions Has Not Been Selected

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Because of the crush of work incident to organization, members of the new federal trade commission said today they had been unable to set a date for beginning public hearings in New York on the general subject of foreign trade conditions. It was said the date probably would be announced next week, and the hearings will be started two or three weeks later.

While the hearings, which will be the first definite work by the commission under organization, will be held under the provision of the trade commission act, empowering that body to investigate trade conditions abroad as they affect American business, the main topic to be discussed will be the advisability of permitting American merchants to co-operate in establishing sales agencies abroad.

The hearing will be one of several efforts undertaken by the federal government to aid American manufacturers in securing Latin-American trade.

OPERA OF TONIGHT GIVEN HIGH PRAISE BY THREE SINGERS

Miss Bori, Amato and Botta All Admire "The Love of Three Kings," New Montemezzi Work

SPLENDID SETTINGS FOR MEDIEVAL TRAGEDY

Opera, Given First Presentation Two Years Ago, Has Won Permanent Place With Metropolitan Company

LUCREZIA BORI, the pretty Spanish soprano, who is to sing Fiora in "L'Amore Dei Tre Re" Friday night. Her great success in "Tales of Hoffman" last Tuesday has given added interest to her second appearance.

Montemezzi's new opera, "L'Amore Dei Tre Re" or "The Love of Three Kings," is to be the bill at the auditorium tonight. Of the story, a reading of the libretto reveals a poem of unusual beauty. Of the music, let Lucrezia Bori, who is to sing it, speak:

"The music of Fiora is lovely," she said, humming a bit of one of the arias. "I have sung nothing more beautiful The opera is truly a great work, and will live when many other new works are forgotten."

Lucca Botta, the handsome young tenor who sang the Duke so well in "Rigoletto," is to have the romantic role of Avito, lover of Fiora. He is equally enthusiastic in his praise of the opera.

"It has pleased everywhere it has been sung," he said. "In South America, at Colon and Buenos Ayres, it was received with much delight! Yes, I am fond of my role. And to sing with Signorina Bori—that will be a joy indeed."

Pasquale Amato, the great baritone, makes his second Atlanta appearance this season in tonight's opera, singing the Manfredo role, a part as nearly the opposite of his terrible Rigoletto of yesterday as can be imagined. He also expressed his admiration of Montemezzi's work.

Adamo Didur, the basso who sang so well in "The Huguenots" and in "Hoffman," is the fourth of the great quartet which dominates the opera. As the old blind king who jealously guards the honor of his son and slays the young wife who has betrayed her absent husband, he has a role of tremendous power. About these four revolves the action of the opera.

The settings for the new opera are worthy of the Metropolitan's artistic standard. The scene is a castle in medieval Italy; old walls, old tapestries. It is the country and the period of which Maurice Hewlett wrote so well, the Italy of the feudal lords, of sword and spear and armor.

That "L'Amore Dei Tre Re' has proved its right to live is shown in the records of the Metropolitan company. It was given first presentation early last season—nearly two years ago, and it has kept its place on the regular repertoire of the company ever since, while several other new works of recent years have been produced, found wanting, and discarded. Atlanta will see the same cast which has made it famous in New York except for Mr. Botta. This excellent tenor, however, has sung the title frequently in other companies before joining the Metropolitan, and his confreres say he is a splendid artist.

The story of "Three Kings" was beautifully told yesterday in The Journal by Miss Nana Tucker, whose series of opera stories have proved so popular and have aided so many readers to more thorough enjoyment of the performances. It is well worth reading again before going to the opera tonight.

GRAND JURY ADVOCATES REDUCTION IN TAX RATE

Presentments Also Recommend Bill to Put County Officers on Salaries

In the presentments of the March term grand jury, of which Frank P. Hice was foreman, made Friday morning to Judge Ben H. Hill of the superior court, a reduction of the present tax rate of $5 cents on the hundred dollars to 70 or 85 cents was recommended.

The grand jury urged the saving of much money annually to the county by paying superior and city court bailiffs, municipal court deputy marshals and special deputies $7 a day for working days instead of their present salaries of $1,500 a year.

The condition of some of the main roads of Fulton county was said to be bad—the Peachtree road from Brookwood to Buckhead, the Roswell road from Buckhead to Roswell, the Pace's Ferry road from Buckhead to the Howell Mill road—and the county commissioners were urged to repair old established roads rather than build new ones. The condition of some of the bridges of the county was said to be really dangerous, said the presentments

A city ordinance requiring every person dealing in junk first to take out a license, was urged, mainly for the purpose of preventing disreputable dealers from purchasing stolen plumbing and other stolen goods, the presentments stated.

"We recommend to the city council that all hospitals be required to report immediately to the police authorities all suspicious cases of injury brought to the hospitals for treatment," the presentments state, "to the end that criminals who have been injured in encounters with the police or with citizens in connection with burglaries or otherwise shall be more certainly apprehended."

The presentments point out that there are fourteen bailiffs serving in the superior and city courts, each on a salary of $1,500 a year, although the courts are in session only about nine months; in the municipal court, which is in session practically throughout the year, the presentments state, there are employed eleven deputy marshals at an annual salary of $1,500 each, two special deputy marshals at $1,200 each, and four special deputy marshals at $900 each.

"Considerable complaint has come to us as to the compensation paid to these officials, and it seems to us that the complaints are well founded," the presentments say, and, with the exception of four bailiffs, two of whom act as probation officers, one as Solicitor Dorsey's assistant, and the other as court house librarian, the jury recommends that all other bailiffs and deputy marshals be paid $5 per diem for time of actual service, and that an act of the legislature authorizing this be passed.

It is pointed out that bailiffs were formerly paid $3 per day for actual service, and that deputy sheriffs now are paid at a per diem rate.

The jury recommended the preparation of a bill placing all county officials under the salary system; the county attorney is now at work on one, according to the presentments.

An automobile for transferring prisoners from the jail to the court house is needed, the recommendations state, and the county commissioners are urged to purchase one.

WEST POINT PROPERTY VALUATION $3,880,266

Agreement Reached After Conference Betwn State and Road Officials

An agreement in the arbitration of the tax returns of the Atlanta and West Point railroad was reached late Thursday afternoon by Chairman C. M. Candler, of the railroad commission; representing the state, and Fuller E. Callaway, of LaGrange, representing the railroad. The agreement was reached without the necessity of selecting a referee and after but three or four conferences.

The valuation of the taxable property of the Atlanta and West Point, as fixed in the award of the arbitrators, was $3,880,266. The railroad had previously sought to return its property at $3,007,-853, and Comptroller General Wright had assessed it at $4,432,309.

The voluntary return of the railroad in 1914 was $4,063,471. Before making his assessment the comptroller general had insisted that the West Point should not make a lower return than last year, which was practically the basis upon which all the other railroads made their 1915 returns.

There is a difference of but $120,000 in the award of the arbitrators as compared to the railroad's return of last year, and this decrease was allowed mainly because of the fact that the railroad this year had less cash on hand than in 1914, the figures for this item for the two years being, 1914, $608,783; 1915, $484,474, which was just $124,309 less this year than last.

These posters were devised and printed by C. H. Neisler, of Cordele, brother of the groom. They were sent ahead of Mr. and Mrs. Neisler to a clerk at the Ansley, who had them well placed in the lobby before the bridal pair arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. Neisler wanted to see grand opera before leaving Atlanta, but there was too much doing here for them, and they left.

4,000 GERMANS SLAIN BY BELGIANS, REPORT

Dunkirk and Rheims Shelled by Kaiser's Artillery--Germans on General Offensive Along East Prussian Border

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 30.—An official statement from Paris says German warships have appeared off the Belgian coast.

The presence of the German high seas fleet in the North sea has been reported several times recently and an official statement issued in Berlin a few days ago spoke of several expeditions of this kind, made without encountering the British fleet. The captain of a Swedish steamer reported that on crossing the North sea a few days ago he encountered a large number of German warships.

An official Belgian statement says a German attack from Steenstraete was repulsed. This may refer to the engagement described in news advices in which it is said 4,000 Germans were almost annihilated by the Belgian artillery.

German artillery forces have bombarded Dunkirk, killing twenty persons, injuring forty-five and demolishing many houses.

A London dispatch indicates that desultory fighting continues in the region of the Suez canal. It is asserted the Turks are preparing to advance for another attack on the British.

The German forces in the east have inaugurated another general offensive along the Prussian border. The movement is believed in Petrograd to be aimed at the Baltic provinces of Russia, which are rich in crops and other supplies.

The German official communication states the situation in the east is unchanged. Heavy fighting in this region was reported in the last official communication from Petrograd.

Two more British steamers—a freighter and a trawler—have been sunk by German submarines.

Dunkirk Shelled From Land, Says German Official Note

BERLIN, April 30.—(By Wireless.)—German army headquarters today gave out this report:

"Aviators have been active on the coast; at Ostend houses were damaged. The forts at Dunkirk was shelled yesterday by German artillery.

"Last night there was fighting between Steenstraete and Hetsas. German troops have fortified positions on bridge heads on the western bank of the canal near Steenstraete and Hetsas, and on the east bank of the canal north of Ypres. Zouaves and Turcos attempted a counter attack on the German right wing but this charge broke down under the German fire.

"In the Champagne district, north of Le Mesnil, the French attempted to win back their former positions, which resulted in failure.

"In the Argonne district to the north of Four de Paris a trench of the enemy was captured. German troops here took the remainder of the trench and thirty men and held the ground gained against repeated French counter attacks.

"Near Cornay, in the eastern part of the Argonne, an aeroplane of the enemy came to earth. The aviators were found to be dead.

"Between the Meuse and the Moselle French attacks on positions conquered by us on the heights of the Meuse remained in failure. To the north of Flirey a French charge failed, with heavy losses. In the fighting on the heights of the Meuse between April 21 and April 28, the French lost in prisoners forty-three officers, including three regimental commanders and about 4,000 men."

"The fortifications of Harwich have been greatly strengthened, say dispatches from England last night said the Ipswich and Bury St. Edmunds has been shelled by a German airship with slight material damage and no loss of life. Harwich is ten miles to the southeast of Ipswich, while Bury St. Edmunds, a town of 16,000 inhabitants, are dropped and two houses set on fire, is about twenty-five miles to the northeast.

"In the eastern arena of the war the vanguards of the German forces advancing from northwestern Russia reached yesterday the railroad running from Duenaburg to Libau. The Russian forces did not offer serious resistance. Fighting is now going on near Skawa and Kalwarya (in Russian Poland north of Suwalki. Duenaburg is about 255 miles to the east of Libau. It is an important manufacturing city, and it is described as a great depot for the Russian artillery. The railroad line between these two points runs east and west through the province of Kovno and it is, roughly speaking, 130 miles to the north of the boundary line between Kovno and east Prussia).

"Strong Russian attacks on our positions failed with heavy losses. German troops took prisoner five officers and 500 unwounded Russian soldiers.

"Further to the south, between Kal-

"Nevertheless the Turks stood by their guns and managed to fire three ineffective shots before seven successive bombs dropped by airships wiped them out.

"A fierce artillery duel took place at 7 o'clock between forces which had landed and Turks posted on the heights beyond Eski Hisarlik. A great British battleship came in close to shore to assist the batteries of the landing force and silenced those of the Turks.

"The net result of the operations is that the allies are in complete possession of the tip of the Gallipoli Peninsula and the flat shores of Suvla Bay, ten miles from the narrows on the opposite side of the peninsula. Good progress also has been made towards the reduction of the forts in the narrows."

5,000 Turks Are Reported Captured by French Army

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, April 30.—"It is reported from Mytilene," says the Exchange Telegraph's Athens correspondent under date of Thursday, "that the French on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, where there have been sanguinary battles at various points, have captured 5,000 Turks and continue their advance successfully."

8,000 Prisoners Taken on Plains of Troy, Report

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, April 30.—An Express dispatch from its Athens correspondent says:

"I learn from Tenedos that the allies occupied the town of Gallipoli after heavy fighting. Allied forces disembarked at Encos, advanced nearly twenty miles and occupied several villages.

"Three British warships bombarded Turkish positions in the Gulf of Smyrna and it is stated that allied troops also landed in the neighborhood of Smyrna.

"Five points on the line between Enos and Saros were selected by the allies for the disembarkation of troops. Another force was landed on the Bulair line. A demonstration by a landing party on the plains of Troy led to the capture of 8,000 prisoners. Turkish troops continue to arrive."

British Capture 1,200 Turks French 1,800, Says Report

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, April 30.—A Mytilene dispatch to the Times dated Thursday says:

"From credible informants who have arrived from Tenedos and Lemnos the following details have been learned of the terrible fighting that has been raging on in the Dardanelles almost incessantly since last Sunday.

"Forces already have been landed on both shores of the straits and additional troops are to follow. The British have attacked the European side while the French have effected a landing on the Asiatic side.

"Several lines of trenches between Cape Helles and Kalid Bahr, on the European side, have been carried by assault and about 1,200 prisoners have been taken. On the Asiatic coast the French have captured some 1,800 men around Kum Kale.

"Today the fighting in the Straits had progressed as far as the line of entrenchments along the ridge that runs from Gulveri arm at Thymbra to the hill of Hisarlik. From the summit of Tenedos, which was crowded with sightseers, shells could be seen exploding all along this line on which the French allies were advancing at about noon. Inside the straits the warships had not yet penetrated beyond Kephez Point but the German garrisons between Kalid Bahr and Cape Helles are now said to be cut off by a strong force of British troops that has established itself across the narrowest part of the Gallipoli peninsula.

"Happily no loss of warships is known to have occurred so far."

Two Turkish Towns Reported Captured by Allied Troops

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, April 30.—"The bombardment in the Dardanelles continues vigorously," says the Daily Telegraph's Mytilene correspondent under date of Wednesday. "The allied ships have reached Vrysey, in front of the Chanak forts, eight miles up the strait.

"Information received here regarding the landing operations is meagre. It is reported that the allies have occupied the town of Maitos as well as the town of Gallipoli.

"Large numbers of Turkish prisoners are being brought to Lemnos and Tenedos.

"Accounts of the operations received here agree that the British and French are making excellent progress, but it is stated that their losses have been heavy."

The Athens correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says that difficulties for the allied troops will increase as they advance farther into the interior, where the Turks have strong defenses and heavy guns. The correspondent adds that the military authorities in Athens believe the campaign will be a long one.

Turks Claim Victory on Both Sides of Straits

(By Associated Press.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Turkey, April 30.—(Via London.)—An official statement issued here today says the allied forces which landed on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles have been entirely cleared away, that a large part of the troops which invaded Gallipoli peninsula has been driven off, and that several warships and transports of the allies have been damaged.

The statement follows:

"No enemy forces remain on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles.

"Hostile forces at Gaba Tepe (west of the Gallipoli peninsula, near the Tip) are obstinately maintaining their positions, under the protection of ships.

"From the other parts of Gallipoli the enemy has been driven off.

"We have damaged several warships and transports."

COTTON MANUFACTURERS CLOSE BOSTON SESSION

(By Associated Press.)

BOSTON, April 30.—A business session and the reading of papers, largely technical, completed the work of the annual convention of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers today. A paper by Arthur H. Gulliver, of Connecticut, dealt with problems in the textile industry emphasized by the European war.

"It is very necessary," said Mr. Gulliver, "for us to consider with the utmost care the change in methods of doing business that have been brought to our attention by the European conflict. In the manufacture of dyes it is useless for us to try to compete at short notice with a nation that has made discoveries and experiments and has spared no expense in producing results from coal tar. It may be possible for us in a number of years to give them some competition."

Georgia-Florida Association Is Organized at Rousing Meeting at Quitman

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

QUITMAN, Ga., April 30.—At a meeting in the court house yesterday, with delegates from every county in Georgia and Florida south of Albany through Moultrie, Quitman, Madison, Live Oak, Lake City and Jacksonville, a permanent highway association was organized with the double purpose of building a network of highways from Chattanooga south through western Georgia and through northern Florida to Jacksonville.

The meeting organized itself by resolution into the Georgia-Florida Highway association and elected five officers, viz.: President, W. C. Vereen, Moultrie; first vice president, D. G. Malloy, Quitman; second vice president, J. L. Fonda, Madison, Fla.; secretary, John W. Greer, Moultrie, and treasurer, Herbert Stubbs, Quitman. These officers were named as the executive committee to perfect the final organization, and it was announced that this organization was not alone for the purpose of presenting to the Dixie highway commissioners a Dixie highway route through Georgia, but was a permanent western Georgia and northern Florida good roads association.

VALUABLE OIL LANDS REVERT TO GOVERNMENT

(By Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 30.—Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane has affirmed the decision of the commissioner of the general land office, withdrawing from entry the quarter section of land known as "The Hawk" oil claims in Kern county from which millions of gallons of oil are said to have been taken, according to an announcement made here today.

The land reverts to the United States government and there is no appeal from the decision.

It is held that the Pacific Midway Oil company and a number of other corporations and individuals who sought a patent did not diligently prosecute the work of exploration for six months.

Bori, Botta and Amato All Love Their Roles In "The Three Kings"

Lucrezia Bori sat in the sunshine on the broad veranda of the Georgian Terrace. She was clad in white, from hat to slippers, and she was the prettiest picture which ever adorned it. She smiled as an admirer, just introduced, summoned a bit of Filipino Spanish to praise her singing in "Tales of Hoffman," and answered him in English, which was all the prettier for its bit of accent. Miss Bori has learned a great deal since she sang Manon here two years ago. She has gained in voice and in dramatic power, she has learned much new English, and apparently she has even achieved the impossible and grown prettier.

Lucca Botta, the new Italian tenor who sang the Duke's role in Rigoletto Thursday afternoon, was chatting with her, and Pasquale Amato, the handsome baritone, joined the group. Miss Bori saluted him with a bar of Fiora's music from "The Love of Three Kings," and he responded with a bit of Manfredo's air, the role he is to sing. Then they fell to discussing the music of the new Montenezzi opera, billed for Friday night, and which all three love.

"It is beautiful," said Miss Bori. "It is a pleasure to sing it."

Amato's pearly smile was his only remark upon his liking for his part, but it was expressive enough. Botta was sure that Atlanta would enjoy the opera. He has never sung the role of Avito in America, but has given it several times in Buenos Aires and in the opera houses of other South American cities. Botta's voice is highly praised for the beauty of its tone, and members of the company say "The Love of Three Kings" will be one of the really fine works of the season.

ANDREW P. THOMPSON IS DANGEROUSLY ILL

Physicians Entertain Slight Hope for Recovery of Prominent Atlantian

The physicians attending Andrew P. Thompson, the well-known Atlanta citizen who is ill at the home of his son, Harry B. Thompson, on Ponce de Leon avenue, entertain slight hope for his recovery.

Mr. Thompson, although seventy-four years of age, had enjoyed vigorous health until ten days ago, when he was stricken with acute internal complications, and his conditions is now critical.

Among the out-of-town members of his family who arrived in the city Thursday to be at his bedside are Mrs. Harry H. Miles, of New York, his daughter, and Clarke Thompson, of Memphis, and Percy W. Thompson, of New York; his sons.

After serving in the Confederate army through the Civil war Mr. Thompson located in Atlanta. For many years he was in the hardware business with Thomas M. Clarke, and later formed the Fitten-Thompson Hardware company. After that he was with the late Harvey Anderson in the Anderson Hardware company.

Some years ago, on account of Mr. Anderson's death and his advanced age, Mr. Thompson retired from active business.

FERTILIZER SALES FOR YEAR SHOW DECREASE

Shortage Is 4,741,965 Tons According to Figures of State Officials

Official figures compiled by Commissioner of Agriculture J. D. Price Thursday show that during the present season, from January 1, 1915, to April 28, 1915, there has been 4,741,965 tons less of commercial fertilizers marketed in Georgia than for the same period last year.

Mr. Price ascertains this fact from the number of fertilizer tags sold by the department. From January 1 to April 28 this year fertilizers sold in this state aggregated 7,795,140 tons as against 12,741,965 for the same period last year. This was 50.47 per cent of the 1914 record.

During the month of April there has been exceptionally heavy shipments of fertilizers. Up to Wednesday, the 28th, 157,647.4 tons had been sold in the state, as compared to 134,213 tons last year, an increase in favor of April this year of 23,434.4 tons.

JOHNSON IS ELIGIBLE TO EDUCATION BOARD

A man is not ineligible to appointment to membership on a county board of education simply because he happened to be a member of the grand jury which recommended him to the governor for the place.

This was held in an opinion rendered Thursday by Attorney General Grice. John R. Johnson, of St. Mary's, was recommended by the grand jury of Camden county for appointment to a vacancy on the board of education of that county.

Before Governor Slaton could make the appointment the question of his eligibility was raised and the governor referred the matter to the attorney general.

MOTHER THINKS DAUGHTER RAN AWAY WITH STUDENT

Mrs. McGee, the girl's mother, came to Atlanta Thursday and invoked the aid of Chief Beavers in the search for her missing daughter.

Saturday and Monday are enrollment days, and all who desire to take a summer course at the Southern Shorthand and Business University are urged to call or write at once.

Those who are entering the Southern now are doing so with the view to being ready for positions in the fall, knowing that the fall is the best time of the year to secure employment.

Several new pupils have entered the Southern this week, but the probabilities are that the attendance will be largely increased on May 4, the opening day of the summer term, as the reduced rates and the propitious time of beginning a course are strong incentives to many to start at this time.

Several secured positions this week.

Call, phone or write at once.

SAVANNAH

SAVANNAH, Ga.—A simple and very beautiful home event was the marriage Tuesday evening of Miss Rosa Gibbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Gibbs, to Lucien J. Ker, lieutenant of engineers, United States coast guard. Only the members of the two families witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by Dr. James Y. Fair, of Richmond, a former pastor of the Independent Presbyterian church here, in the front drawing room, where the marriage took place, white roses and lilies were used in profusion, and in the second room through which the bride and her maid of honor entered, pink Killarney roses were the dominant flowers. Miss Emma Walthour, the maid of honor, preceded the bride, who entered with her father, Mr. C. M. Gibbs, and at the improvised altar were met by Mr. Ker and his best man, Dr. Ralston Latimore. The bride's wedding gown was an unusually lovely one, fashioned entirely of soft silk tulle and rose point lace. The entire bodice was of lace over tulle and with an embroidered design in pearls on the front of the corsage, and a delicate line of pearls outlining the V-neck. Her tulle veil was arranged over a cap of lace and she carried a beautiful shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. She wore the groom's gift, a beautiful bracelet of diamonds set in platinum.

Miss Walthour wore a most becoming gown of embroidered organdie over apple green taffeta and carried an armful of Killarney roses fringed with green. At 9 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs gave a reception in Mr. and Mrs. Kerr's honor, and several hundred guests were entertained. Mr. and Mrs. Ker left at midnight. They will spend several weeks north and will return to Savannah the latter part of May for a month's visit to Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs before going to Norfolk, Va., to reside.

Germans Prepare for Success

Rotterdam—After the "final victory" the German people are to be urged to decorate their houses with "victory" wall paper.

This statement may sound fantastic to those unacquainted with the German mind; but it is so far from being so that a sample of this paper has already reached Rotterdam. The German tri-color is printed in vertical bands on a white ground lined with black zigzags.

At intervals on the tri-color bands appears in black the Iron Cross on a spray of green foliage and between the bands is a highly conventionalized yellow crown surrounded by a still more highly conventionalized laurel wreath.

"I WILL NOT Resort to Unlawful Promises in Order to Gain Your Vote" Says Thos. H. Jeffries, Candidate for Ordinary.

I am a law-abiding citizen. As such, in good conscience, I cannot accept the challenge of my opponent to donate any portion of the emoluments of the office which I seek, to the County.

Here Is the Law: Read It

"A promise by a candidate for office, made to the electors generally, to serve, if elected, for less than the fees or salary allowed by law, constitutes bribery. Peoples vs. Thornton, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 456. See also State vs. Elting, 29 Kan. 397; Alford vs. Collins, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 418; Clements vs. Humphries, 74, Tex. 466. 12 S. W. Rep. 99; State vs. Purdy, 36 Wis. 213. And a candidate for a public office, who, for the purpose of influencing the voters, makes a pledge to pay into the County all fees received by him in excess of a certain annual salary, is guitly of offering a bribe to the voters."

In a Former Announcement I Stated My Position on the "Salary System."

"The Magic Flute"

Saturday Matinee.

BY NANA TUCKER

THE MAGIC FLUTE, written one hundred and twenty years ago, is in its wealth of pure melody, and the refined beauty of its instrumentation as well as in its symbolism and ethical teaching, one of the great musical works of all times.

THE CAST

Sarastro	Basil Ruysdael
Queen of the Night	Frieda Hempel
Pamina	Melanie Kurt
First Lady	Vera Curtis
Second Lady	Rita Fornia
Third Lady	Lila Robeson
First Youth	Mabel Garrison
Second Youth	Anna Case
Third Youth	Marie Mattfeld
Tamino	Johannes Sembach
Papageno	Otto Goritz
Papagena	Elizabeth Schumann
Monostatos	Albert Reiss

Wagner, writing in praise of it, declared the "godlike magic" breathing through it to be "the quintessence of every noblest bloom of art here blended into one unequaled flower."

It is an opera in which no one is killed—the evil simply sinks out of sight—the problems presented being but psychological. There are no prolonged emotional love scenes, the hero and heroine having taken love for granted; yet the dramatic interest never flags for a moment.

This was Mozart's last opera, being written and first performed in Vienna but a few months before his death.

The libretto is not at first understandable until its symbolic significance is explained. Both Mozart and Schikanader—the composer and the playwright—were Freemasons, and together they conceived the plan for an allegorical work which should be a sort of glorification of their order, illustrating its struggles and triumphs at that time.

OPERA A DEFENSE OF FREEMASONRY.

Maria Theresa, the empress of Austria, claiming that Freemasonsy opposed the religion of the church, was so bitter against it that she interdicted its practice throughout her dominions. In the opera the empress is represented as the Queen of Night, of darkness—the spirit of evil and ignorance. Joseph II, who, though not a Mason himself, espoused the cause, is Tamino, the principal tenor role of the opera. The character of Pamina, the daughter of the Queen of Night, represents the Austrian people. (This is the leading soprano role.) Monostatos, the villain in the play, whose name is derived from monasticism, typifies the clerical party, the monastic orders, and Jesuits, bent upon the destruction of Freemasonry. In Papageno, the comedy role, may be found an amusing representative of the light-hearted, pleasure-loving Viennese of that period.

The flute, of course, symbolizes power—the power of gift and spiritual understanding.

In order that the play might not have too much of a local setting, the action is made to take place in Egypt. And Freemasonry is interwoven with the tales of Egyptian gods and Egyptian mysticism, being represented in the mysteries of Isis presided over by the High Priest Sarastro. In this magnificent character is the role of the basso.

THE PLOT A BATTLE OF GOOD AND EVIL.

The conflict in the opera between good and evil, light and darkness is foreshadowed in the music of the overture, which as regards perfection of form is generally conceded to be the finest of all opera overtures. It contains a wonderful fugue of which Schumann said, "every note is pure gold." The three impressive chords at the opening are associated with the broad, noble character of Sarastro, while in the theme of the brilliant fugue is characterized the Queen of Night.

The curtain rises on a rocky region with trees and rugged cliffs. In the foreground, the entrance to a cave; in the background, the gloomy temple of the Queen of Night.

Tamino (tenor), a young Egyptian prince, has been out hunting, and becoming separated from his companions, has lost his way. Unarmed and defenseless, with a bow in his hand but no arrow, he rushes on the stage pursued by a huge serpent, but falls in a swoon from fright and fatigue at the entrance of the cave. The door of the temple opens and three veiled ladies, attendants on the Queen of Night, appear and stab the serpent with their silver spears, singing a lovely trio suggestive of fairy realms.

THE ENTRANCE OF PAPAGENO.

As they depart to inform their queen of the presence of the strange prince, the note of a Pan's-pipe is heard, followed by a rollicking song, as the figure of a man dressed in feathers to resemble a huge bird, and bearing on his back a cage of birds, appears suddenly on the scene. It is Papageno (baritone), the bird catcher, who supplies the comic element of the opera. In his familiar song, "A Bird Catcher Am I," he merrily describes his occupation, and pleasure-loving life. Tamino revives and seeing the serpent dead, pays his thanks to his supposed rescuer. And Papageno, now perceiving the serpent for the first time, after making sure that he is quite dead, joyously accepts the credit. The three ladies return and rebuke him for his falsehood by fastening a little padlock on his lips. To Tamino they bring a medallion containing a miniature of the beautiful Princess Pamina, the daughter of the Queen of Night, who has been taken from her mother by Sarastro, the priest of Isis. Papageno, dumb with astonishment—and the padlock—passes gaily out, and Tamino, gazing in ecstacy on the miniature, sings his beautiful aria: "Oh, beauteous form with semblance fair!"

Now with a loud peal of thunder the stage is left in darkness, but the little hills burst asunder, a starry heaven appears, and the Queen of Night is revealed sitting on a glittering throne. (This is the difficult high soprano role.) In a magnificent recitative and aria, "O Noble Youth," the queen promises Tamino that if he will rescue her daughter he may have her for his bride; it was with this in view she had sent him the miniature. With another peal of thunder the queen and her throne disappear. Tamino resolves to go at once to the rescue of Pamina, but Papageno stops him, humming a melody through locked lips. The three ladies appearing, here follows the humorous Padlock Quintette.

The ladies give Tamino an enchanted flute to protect him from all harm. To Papageno they give a glockenspiel—a chime of silver bells—possessing magic power, and mercifully remove the padlock from his lips, bidding him accompany Tamino on his quest. All sing farewell, informing the travelers that besides silver bells and flute of magic, they will have three winged youths to go before them to Sarastro's palace.

IN THE PALACE OF SARASTRO.

The scene changes to a rich apartment in the palace of Sarastro. Egyptian slaves lead the way as the Princess Pamina (soprano) enters, closely followed by Monostatos, a Moor (tenor). This Moor has been given the charge of the young princess, but is proving unworthy of the trust by treating her as a prisoner and persecuting her with declarations of love. Papageno, heralded by his characteristic melody, bursts into the room in search of Pamina, and with his feathery dress frightens Monostatos away; himself equally alarmed, mistaking the blackness of the Moor for an evil spirit, he runs off in the opposite direction. But presently he returns, relates his mission, and finally prevails upon Pamina to let him conduct her to the Prince Tamino, who is waiting outside the temple. While she hesitates they sing a graceful duo—"The smile that on the lip is playing"—the air of which is familiar, having been adopted, like a great number of Mozart's opera melodies, into the service of the church.

The scene changes to a sacred grove, in the center of which is the Temple of Wisdom; on the left is the Temple of Nature; to the right, the Temple of Reason.

The three winged youths, carrying silver palm branches, lead in Tamino, and showing him the way, go out. Beholding the magnificence of the temple, Tamino is filled with wonder—he had thought of Sarastro only as a tyrant, but this seems the abode of gods. He tries first the entrance to the Temple of Nature; then the entrance to the Temple of Reason, but gains no admittance. Now as he advances toward the Temple of Wisdom a priest comes out, and in reply to Tamino's questioning reveals to him the true character of Sarastro, explaining that Pamina has been brought hither to be saved from the evil influence of her mother, and that Tamino may enter the sanctuary only when led by higher motives that those of hatred and revenge. Tamino, who has forgotten Nature, who has never known Reason, and who must now wait before he can acquire Wisdom, is seized with sudden longing to penetrate the darkness of spiritual vision, and sings:

"When wilt thou pass, O endless night,
And these too weary eyes behold celestial light?"

To this cry a choir of invisible voices replies in mysterious tones, "Ere long, or never!"

THE MAGIC FLUTE LIKE PIPES OF PAN.

Rejoicing that his words are answered, he now asks if Pamina still lives, and in beautiful chorus repeating her name the voices answer, "Pamina lives!" In a transport of joy he plays upon his flute, whereupon birds and animals flock to him, and his tones are answered by the Pan's-pipe of Papageno in the distance. Deceived by the echoes, he hastens away in the wrong direction, just as Papageno appears with Pamina. Monostatos, in pursuit, orders his slaves to bind Pamina, but Papageno, bethinking him of the glockenspiel, begins to play the silver bells, and immediately the slaves are bewitched and powerless to do aught but dance in time to the music.

At this juncture enters Sarastro, the high priest, before whom all bow. Attended by his suite, he is drawn in in a gorgeous chariot. As he descends Pamina throws herself at his feet, explaining that it was from cruelty of Monostatos that she had fled and not from him. Sarastro, lifting her up, grants forgiveness, but not her freedom. She will not be happy, he tells her, if she returns to her mother, "for a woman must be guided by a man's wisdom." Monostatos is ordered to the bastinado for punishment. But to Tamino, who is now brought forward, is granted the promise that he may be united with Pamina after both have given proof of their love and constancy. Sarastro orders them to the Temple of Probation to be purified by the sacred rites; and as the priests ceremoniously cover the heads of the two with veils and lead them away in opposite directions the act closes.

The first scene of the second act is at the court of Sarastro. The priests enter to the music of a stately march and chorus. Sarastro tells the priests that Tamino, the son of a king, waits at the north door of the temple, "desirous of tearing off the veil of darkness and beholding the sanctuary of light;" and if he has thus far proven himself worthy to be admitted to the further tests of "courage, steadfastness, self-control and faith," all may make known their willingness by joining with him in a blast upon the trumpets. The horns are blown with ceremony, and Tamino is admitted. Now Sarastro lifts his hands to the gods and sings his superb "Invocation," one of the most impressive numbers in the opera. The priests bow reverently as they join in the prayer to Isis and Osiris to grant the spirit of faith and wisdom. And above the church-like chorus rumbles in the orchestra the voice of Sarastro rises toward heaven as he and the priests depart in solemn procession.

QUEEN'S AIR ONE OF THE MOST DIFFICULT.

The scene now changes to the courtyard of the Temple of Ordeal. It is night. The three ladies from the Queen of Night rush in with torches and try to dissuade Tamino by threatening him with the queen's vengeance. The chanting of the priests is heard within the temple—thus there is a contest between the followers of light and the followers of darkness, but Tamina remains firm.

Meanwhile in another garden under an arbor of roses Pamina is discovered asleep in the moonlight. Monostatos, entering stealthily, sings softly of his love for her even though he is but a Moor. Suddenly the Queen of Night appears, and awakening Pamina, gives her a dagger, swearing that unless she thrust it into the heart of Sarastro she shall never wed Tamino. In dramatic tones she sings of her vengeance in a brilliant aria which is said be the most difficult ever written. When the queen disappears Monostatos threatens Pamina, but Sarastro enters and she tells him all, begging that he will not punish her mother. Then it is the high priest sings his noble cavatina—

"Within these hallowed walls dire
vengeance is unknown—
And if a man should fall, love brings him back to duty."

During the probationary trials of the lovers there is a scene in which Pamina meets Tamino, and not knowing that he is undergoing the test of silence and has been forbidden to speak to any woman, thinks he no longer loves her, and after singing her pathetic aria, "Joys Forever Vanished," attempts her life with her dagger, clinging to it, "Thou art my bridegroom!"—but the three winged youths prevent.

The scene changes, showing a wild mountain spot, with caves in the rocks; from one is heard the rushing of water; from the other is seen the glow of fire. Two men in black armor, carrying glittering swords, bring in Tamino to pass through his final trial—that of purification by the elements.

VOICE OF THE FLUTE SOARS ABOVE ALL.

Pamina, inspired by her lover's courage, obtains permission to join him and share his peril—her love and the magic flute will protect them, she says. The flute, which had been withheld until he should prove that he would not misuse the power symbolized by it, being now restored to Tamino, together the two pass through the flaming fire and the flood of waters. And now the voice of the flute soars high above the whole orchestra in phrases of magic melody, as the lovers, victorious through their many trials, ascend the steps leading to the temple and kneel before the altar of Sarastro, while the priests shout joyful acclamation.

There is another scene here in which Papageno reappears and has some trials of his own, after which he is rewarded with a little wife feathered like himself, but this is only to introduce a vein of humor and does not bear on the development of the real story.

The Queen of Night, her attendants and Monostatos now return with torches to destroy the temple. But at a sign from Sarastro the wall, which was but a thin partition dividing him from his enemies outside in the darkness of the night, all at once vanishes, and as the bright light from the temple shines out, the queen and her train disappear—they sink into the earth.

The opera closes with the magnificent chorus of the priests chanting the triumph of good over evil, and the ultimate rule of light and truth.

ELKIN DRUG CO.

Dandruff Surely Destroys the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—(Advt.)

HEADACHES

Thousands of men and women suffer from headaches every day, other thousands have headaches every week or every month, and still others have headaches occasionally, but not at regular intervals. The best Doctor in the world is unable to find the cause of many of those headaches, and in most other cases, knowing the cause, he does not know what will remove it, so as to give a permanent cure. All he can do is to prescribe the usual pain relievers, which give temporary relief, but the headache returns as usual, and treatment is again necessary. If you suffer from headaches, no matter what their nature, take Anti-Jamin Tablets, and the results will be satisfactory in the highest degree. You can obtain them at all druggists in any quantity, 10c worth, 25c worth or more. Ask for A-K Tablets.

SICK-HEADACHES

Sick-headache, the most miserable of all sicknesses, loses its terrors when A-K Tablets are taken. When you feel an attack coming on, take two tablets and in many cases, the attack will be warded off. During an attack take one A-K Tablet every two hours. The rest and comfort which follow, can be obtained in no other way.

Genuine A-K Tablets bear the K monogram. At all druggists.

KAISER'S FLEET IS REPORTED AT LARGE OFF BELGIAN COAST

Germans on Offensive Along Entire Prussian Frontier

PETROGRAD, April 30.—(Via London.)—A general German offensive again is under way along the entire Prussian border from Tilsit to the Vistula.

The German advance this time evidently is aimed at the Baltic provinces, which are rich in crops and other food supplies.

For months the military operations on the Prussian border had been limited to scouting parties, isolated artillery duels and aeroplane warfare.

From Polangen, in the Baltic province of Courland, it was reported today that an increased number of German cruisers were preparing to assist the contemplated advance of the land forces.

Thus far the German offensive movement has consisted mainly of heavy artillery fire at intervals along the whole front and rapid cavalry advances without infantry support.

On the Carpathian front nothing has happened in the last two days to alter the curiously balanced situation. The Russians still are directing an offensive against Uzsok and the Austrians attempting a movement toward Stry. The Austrian forces temporarily are abandoning their attacks at other points and are being concentrated in an effort to bend back the Russian left wing with Lwow (Lemberg) as the ultimate Austrian objective.

The increasing Russian menace on Uzsok pass, however, Russian military observers say, has brought this movement to a standstill since with Uzsok in Russian hands the operations of the Austrian right wing, deprived of most important support, would automatically collapse.

German Fleet Againls Reported in North Sea

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, April 30.—(Via London.)—German warships have been seen off the Belgian coast, according to an afficial statement given out in Paris today.

There have been several dispatches in the past week indicating that German warships were as large in the North sea, evidently having evaded the British men-of-war, which for many months have been doing patrol duty in front of the German naval bases on the eastern side of the North sea.

The latest report along that line was brought in by Captain Scott of a Swedish steamer, who declared he had seen in the North sea a German fleet of 68 vessels of all classes. The officer did not say where or when the ships had been sighted, but the inference was that it was within a week.

Dunkirk is on the northern coast of France, within a few miles of the Belgian frontier. It is at the northern entrance of the English channel, east of Dover, and west of Ostend.

There have been four engagements of importance in the North sea since the beginning of the war. The first was the battle of Helgoland, late in August, in which a British fleet sent four German warships to the bottom. In October, four German destroyers were sunk in an engagement off the Dutch coast. On December 16, a German cruiser squadron raided the east coast of England, bombarding Scarborough and the Hartlepools. On January 24, a British squadron intercepted a German squadron while it was crossing the North sea to make another raid, and sank the German cruiser Bluecher.

4,000 Germans Reported Slain Crossing the Yperlee

(By Associated Press.)

HAVRE, April 30.—Virtual annihilation of 4,000 Germans who crossed the Yperlee over a bridge near Steenstraete is described by the newspaper Vingtieme Siecle. Belgian artillery destroyed the bridge and showered the invaders with shrapnel. Many tied handkerchiefs to their bayonets and raised them in sign of surrender, but immediately their own quick urers, the newspaper says, opened fire and mowed them down pitilessly. Many survivors were made prisoners by the Belgians.

Paris Official Note Reports German Fleet at Large

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, April 30.—The French war office report this afternoon follows:

"We made progress yesterday to the north of Ypres, in the region of Steenstraate.

"The city of Rheims received 500 shells of which many were of an incendiary nature. These missiles started several fires, but it was found possible to circumscribe them and to put them out quickly.

"In the Champagne district the enemy shelled one of our ambulances, wounding a doctor.

"German warships have been reported at large off the coast of Belgium.

"Dunkirk yesterday received nineteen shells of large caliber. Twenty persons were killed and forty-five wounded. Some houses were destroyed."

French Statement Accuses Berlin of Mistating Facts

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, April 30.—An official note issued by the war office gives details designed to show that the Germans continually are misstating the facts in regard to recent battles. Assertions in regard to occupied territory made in French official statements are said to have been absolutely exact. At several places, notably between Henamenil and Ancerviller, an advance of between 2 and 2 2-3 miles is reported.

It is contended in the note that the French are making continual progress in this region, and now are not far from the Lorraine boundary.

Belgians Claim Repulse to Germans and New Progress

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, April 30.—Belgian army headquarters has issued this official report.

"During the night of April 28-29 our troops repulsed with success a German attack from Steenstraate.

"On April 29 the enemy's artillery became active and bombarded at intervals various parts of our line. We occupied a farm south of Plauvoetbreg."

German Attack on Yser Has Ceased, Says Correspondent

LONDON, April 30.—The German attack on the Yser has ceased, says the Times' correspondent in northern France, writing under date of Thursday.

"The enemy has fallen back on the defensive," says the correspondent, "and is struggling to defend the small territory gained.

"Foiled in the attempt to cross the canal, the enemy made an equally vain attempt to force a passage of the Yser at Dixmude. Belgian shells and bombs destroyed pontoon bridges as soon as they were in position, and the gallant Belgian army still holds its lines intact."

Turks Again Advancing Toward the Suez Canal

LONDON, April 30.—Military operations apparently are continuing in the vicinity of the Suez canal, about which little has been heard recently, says the Post, in publishing a letter from an officer who says a party of Turks fired on a white flag, killing two and wounding eight men while they were attempting to deliver a letter to Turkish officials.

The letter says:

"We expect soon to be sent up the canal again as we hear the Turks are advancing."

Will Spare Monuments

AMSTERDAM, April 30.—The German general staff has issued a formal reply to numerous letters and communications expressing a desire that monuments of art and civilization in the war zones should be preserved by the German armies as far as possible.

"These appeals," says the staff's statement, "show how deeply rooted in our people is the understanding of such culture questions. The German army is equally inspired by such sentiments, and always spares monuments when they are not either destroyed by the enemy or used in the enemy's scheme of battle."

CONFESSES TO KILLING MAN THIRTEEN YEARS AGO

(By Associated Press.)

PITTSBURG, April 30.—Haunted by the memory of his crime for thirteen years, during which time he wandered over much of the world, Antonio Rizzo appeared District Attorney R. H. Jackson in the corridor of the court house here yesterday and confessed he killed Michelangelo Distano, in Sharpsburg, Pa., in 1902. Rizzo said that after the murder he went to England and later to South America. He returned to the United States in 1906, locating in New Haven, Conn., where he has been ever since.

STARS IN "RIGOLETTO" STIR STORMY SCENE

Forced to Repeat Famous Quartet -- Amato Reveals New Powers--Botta and Hempel Sing Brilliantly

BY DUDLEY GLASS.

Atlanta operagoers are still discussing today the fine performance of "Rigoletto" of Thursday afternoon, a presentation of the old Verdi opera which revealed new beauties to those familiar with the work. The cast was entirely different from that of several seasons ago, and Atlanta heard Amato for the first time in the role of the Jester. The audience almost filled the house, and must have numbered 5,000 persons.

Amato has for several years been recognized as a great singer, the possessor of a baritone remarkable in its power and expression. But never before in the south has he revealed such dramatic powers as in his Rigoletto. He is appealing in the lovely scene with his daughter, terrible in his denunciation of the "vile race of courtiers" and his maledictions against the duke. His mighty voice filled the big auditorium in the supreme moments of his rage, and stood out even against the clamor of the orchestra, roused to its utmost by Conductor Papi. Amato's acting Thursday was as perfect as his singing, and when that is said there can be no higher praise.

Lucca Botta made his Atlanta debut. He sang the tuneful arias of the duke's role in beautiful manner, revealing a voice of singular sweetness. He made a handsome figure in doublet and hose and from his opening "Questo o quella" to the last strains of "Donna o Mobile" behind the scenes was in perfect voice.

Mme. Frieda Hempel was the Gilda, and her clear soprano has never been heard here to better advantage than in the rippling music of "Caro Nome" and in the third act scene with Amato. One can hardly hear too much of Hempel, and Atlanta is eagerly awaiting her "Queen's Air" in the Mozart opera tomorrow afternoon.

Miss Sophie Braslau's colorful contralto was given a fine opportunity in the one act allowed her and her Maddalena took on more prominence than usually is associated with the part. She was a pretty figure in her gown of scarlet, with black tresses flying above it, and her share in the great quartet was admirably borne.

The quartet, of course, was the crowning feature of the performance in popularity with the audience. It was cheered again and again, and at last the conductor, unable to continue the music, signalled for a repetition. Botta, whose tenor bears the burden of the quartet, was left the decision. He twice shook his head in smiling refusal and pointed to his throat, but the audience was insistent and at last he consented and swung again into the opening strains "Fairest Daughter of the Graces." The famous concerted number, with its four voices in varying emotions, was perhaps never sung more beautifully than by Botta, Amato, Hempel and Braslau.

Each of the singers was given tumultuous applause, and Amato especially was called before the curtain to bow and bow again until he signified by a pathetic droop of his shoulders that he was utterly exhausted.

High praise must be given to Gennaro Papi, assistant conductor of the Metropolitan, who directed the orchestra and singers in a masterful way. Signor Polacco, who found himself confronted with the task of conducting three operas which were to have been directed by Toscanini, was wise enough not to undertake more than one leader could accomplish without fatigue, and the "Rigoletto" was entrusted to Signor Papi. His work was given a fine tribute by his musicians, who applauded him softly as the opera closed, and by Miss Bord, Mr. and Mrs. Martinelli and other members of the company who occupied

Making Good Work Possible.

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Vote early but not often.

Fine weather for the opera and likewise for election day.

Among the new generals created by the war may be named General Advance, General Retreat, General Slaughter and a few others more or less notorious.

Increasing Traffic.

The fact that the earnings of the Central of Georgia railway for the week ended April the twenty-sixth last were greater than those of the corresponding week of 1914 is a particularly cheering sign of business improvement. Increased traffic means not only that better times are coming, but that they are actually here. It means that industries are rekindling, that markets are opening, that commercial travelers are in the field, that goods are being bought and sold. When the blood flows strong and free the heart is sound; and when railways, the arteries of trade, become active after months of depression, the heart of business is beating normally again.

Few interests, if any, felt the benumbing effects of the war more acutely than did the railroads. Their revenues for the last five months of 1914 showed declines of from fifteen to forty per cent as compared with the same period of the preceding year, this being due, of course, to the misfortunes of cotton. It is especially significant, therefore, that the Central of Georgia has experienced a week of earnings greater than those of the same week last year when there was no handicap of war conditions. This record is in keeping with that of Atlanta's bank clearings and postal receipts; it chimes with the announcement that cotton mills are running again on full time, and with the reports from competent observers everywhere that business is moving steadily forward.

It is noteworthy in this connection that several of the large railway systems of the East are placing orders for millions of dollars' worth of new equipment. The carriers are preparing for a season of expansion and activity. Their credit has been restored, their affairs are on a sounder basis than they have been for years; in common with all industry, they face a time of abounding prosperity.

One must remember that the war must continue for the sake of the movies.

You must admit that Secretary Bryan was instrumental in putting three kings and the mayor of Chicago on the water wagon.

Springtime and Purses.

Apropos the increase in railway traffic, this bit of comment from the Athens Herald is interesting:

"A passenger leaving Athens last Thursday reports that the train was crowded with shoppers, and that bundles were piled high on the seats and in the laps of the passengers. It did not look much like hard times. It looked like old times, the good old summer time when passengers would fill the train with bundles which they had purchased in Athens and were taking home."

Every shopping center in Georgia is enjoying a measure of this trade revival. Springtime is reaching into the people's purse. "Riches take unto themselves wings, and fly." But it all depends on which way they fly. Just now, it seems, they are flying back and forth between buyers and sellers, and that is what money is for.

Atlanta was beaten by a score of twelve to one, but think of what it would have been in a tenining game.

Grand opera may come and go, but there are those in our midst who like best of all—and are not ashamed to admit it—the male quartet and the cornet solo.

Cultivation, Harvesting And---Marketing.

The occupation of farming comprises three distinct departments, namely cultivation, harvesting, and marketing. Much thought and attention have been given in the past to the first two. But it is only within very recent times that the last one has received any attention at all.

It is now being discovered that in importance it leads perhaps the others. There has long been a cry for diversified crops in the South. Little attention was paid to it at first but conditions within the past year brought the farmers to a real desire to break away from the one-crop system. They were confronted immediately with the problem of marketing their products—a problem that has confronted and oftentimes dumfounded and discouraged every man in the past who has attempted to get out of the rut of raising cotton and corn only. It was no trouble for such a man to raise abundance of other crops but he frequently saw them spoil on his hands after they had been harvested through his inability to sell them. This inability may have grown out of ignorance of how best to pack his products so that they would keep and be attractive to the city consumer or it may have been through want of knowledge of the best centers in which to dispose of the fruits of his fields.

It is gratifying, however, to note the efforts that are now being put forth to assist the farmers in the marketing problem. The Federal government has begun upon it, state governments are formulating many plans of help, chambers of commerce and other industrial organizations are studying methods and wholesale and retail grocers in all large cities are making it their special duty to cooperate with farmers in showing them ways of packing and preparing country products, if the articles are to find ready sale in city stores.

With all these agencies at work, it will undoubtedly be brought about within the next few years that farmers will be as familiar with all the intricacies of marketing as they are now familiar with furrows, harrows and harvesters.

"Zeppelins raid English towns." "Allies continue drive." War news is one repetition of history—and modern history at that—after another.

A Waning Sport.

"Dollar chasing in this country is not the sport it used to be," observes former President Taft, his idea being that Americans have found, or are finding, paths better worth their while than the quest of vast fortunes. Few Americans, it is true, have succeeded in finding even a blind trail to vast fortunes; the rank and file of them have been sufficiently occupied in keeping step on the broad and dusty highway. But our country has been peculiarly marked by kings of wealth. Its captains of industry and finance have set new records of achievement, and money-making has been at least one of our national ideals.

That was only to be expected of a land which was mostly a wilderness two centuries ago and where opportunities hitherto undreamed of awaited the man of energy and ambition. The same spirit that felled the forest and built railways across a wild continent found renewed and appropriate expression later on in turning natural resources and industrial appliances to wonderful account. So, too, the age of "commercialism" in America was a natural outcome of earlier forces and of preceding development. But "commercialism," despite its grip on popular thought and on government itself, was destined to pass as the pioneers before it.

Human interests and human values count for more and more in the United States. We shall measure our prosperity not by the amount of wealth which a score or a hundred of exceptionally gifted or exceptionally lucky men have accumulated, but by the economic and social attainment of the people as a whole. Business will not lose its importance; business success will not cease to be admired; but we shall be more and more concerned with what men are rather than with what they have. Education and culture will weigh more than dollars and cents. We shall live more broadly, and think more deeply.

It wouldn't be surprising if Barnes' libel suit were merely a scheme to put the colonel politically on record.

Colored Cotton.

Experiments looking to the production of black cotton are being conducted by Mr. A. W. Brabham, of Olar, South Carolina. The Savannah Press quotes him as saying:

"God gave men five primal sorts of cotton—white, red, brown, yellow and black. The black has been lost somewhere in the mists of the ages, but every experienced breeder knows that so long as the species exists the lost variety can be restored. To this end, I am working; and only last week the start was made by planting deep green lint cotton, red lint cotton and brown lint cotton in my experimental patch. If I can get the three to come into blossom at the same time, black lint is assured."

This strikes one as outburbanking Burbank. A blue moon, a purple cow or a green snow would be tame surprises compared with sable cotton. Yet, "there are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio —."

The distinctive feature of Mr. Brabham's experiment is the utility of its aim. He is not simply prying into the secrets of nature. If he succeeds, he will have produced something of commercial value and, perhaps, will have solved, or at least have simplified the dyestuff problem, now of such intense concern to American textile mills. If colored cotton can be grown the South will be more of a wonderland than ever, and sand-colored stockings along with rainbow shirts can be raised by the acre.

Many a man who talks like a war hero compels his wife to interview the janitor every time he has occasion to make a kick.

Editorial Echoes

The epigrammatic remark of Mr. Carnegie that "steel is either prince or pauper" is recalled by the statement published this morning of the United States Steel Corporation's earnings for the first quarter of the current year. In the aggregate they are much smaller than for the corresponding three months of the current year, but the significant fact is that the earnings for March are twice as large as those for February, which, in turn, were twice as large as those for January. It is not arithmetical but geometrical progression. Students of economics regard the steel and iron industry as a barometer of general conditions—these metals entering into so many varied constructive and manufacturing activities. The exhibit made by the great Steel Corporation therefore is gratifying evidence of general return of the activity that spells prosperity.—New York Herald.

Your Thoughts and Your Face.

BY H. ADDINGTON BRUCE.

(Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Psychology and Parenthood," Etc.

The other evening I witnessed the performance of a delightful little play in which these striking lines occurred:

"Beautiful thoughts make beautiful lives, and beautiful lives make beautiful people."

Psychologically this is absolutely sound. The most potent beauty recipe in the world is phrased in this simple formula:

"Lay hold of high ideals, and cling to them."

Even those to whom Nature has not been generous in point of facial appearance may become beautiful in the eyes of the world by dint of right thinking and right living.

Does anybody, looking at the portrait of Abraham Lincoln, ever think of him as an ugly man?

And, on the opposite, no matter with what beauty of feature a person may begin life, the cultivation of ugly thoughts is certain soon or late to give a cast to the countenance that will negate the original endowment of beauty.

The face is truly the mirror of the soul, and reflects accurately the state of a man or woman's inward being.

In fact, there is now in process of development a real science of physiognomy based on the demonstrable fact that a person's face is affected for good or for ill by his or her character. So far has this science developed that one of its exponents has earned thousands of dollars selecting employes for large firms on the basis of the lines told by the faces of the applicants for employment.

In this there is nothing occult or mystical. It is a wholly logical procedure growing out of the discovery that every thought a person thinks is accomplished by muscular action of some sort, and especially by action in the muscles of the face. One kind of thought causes a certain kind of action, another a very different kind.

When, therefore, a person thinks habitually along specific lines, the muscles affected by that variety of thinking are necessarily exercised much more frequently than would otherwise be the case; and, growing through exercise, they gradually cause a perceptible change in the appearance of the face.

Every feature is thereby affected more or less. Later I shall, from time to time, indicate the specific changes thus brought about by right and wrong thinking.

Questions to Test Mentality.

Some of the new tests to determine the degree of intelligence possessed by a person who in one way or another becomes a subject of inquiry are curious and interesting. They are also worth trying, as a sort of a game, on people who have no doubt whatever that their minds are all right. To illustrate what can be done in this way here are three questions which, among others, were recently propounded to a young woman of eighteen, who was suspected of being, mentally, some years queer.

A man went walking in the woods. He saw something hanging from a tree. He ran to the police station and told the police. What did he see?

If a bicycle rider fell from his bicycle and broke his neck and was taken to a hospital, what would be silly about that?

Is it easier to forgive any one if he struck you in anger or otherwise?

To the first question the young woman's answer was, "A dead body," and it was marked "correct." Her reply to the second inquiry was less successful—"He should not ride a bicycle if he does not know how," and the third response took a truly strange form, "God forgive us when we fight."

The expert decided that though the "subject" had lived for eighteen years, so far as responsibility and ability went she was only eleven years old. The decision seems rather harsh, or at least dubiously accurate, for not a few people might be caught by that second question, if forced to answer it quickly, and the third one is clumsily expressed—so clumsily that perhaps it shows nearly as much about the questioner as the answer did about the young woman.—New York Times.

WHERE MATZOS IS MADE.

The United States now supplies a large part of the matzos bread used by the Jews of the world during their Passover week, which they have kept for 3,000 years in celebration of their delivery from the hands of the Egyptians. This celebration comes in March, and for months before that time a matzos factory has been working almost day and night to supply the demand for this special unleavened bread.

* * *

A single factory in Cincinnati manufactures the bulk of this food, making an average production of ten pounds of baked matzos per minute and consuming 500 barrels of flour per week. All of the work of baking this bread is in the hands of skilled Jewish bakers. The ancient formula is used, although the bread is baked by steam and electricity instead of being dried in the sun as in the early days.

* * *

The matzos is a sort of cracker, about six inches square, made from a stiff dough, baked for four minutes in an oven of moderate heat. The factory in Cincinnati ships it to all parts of the world. Although the eating of matzos is a custom peculiar to the orthodox Jews, it is rapidly spreading among other people, who have found it a toothsome cracker for many uses. It is similar to a bread made by the Norwegians, except that it is crisper and not so flaky. The manufacturers make no effort to popularize it with the public because its use has a religious significance to the Jewish race. They will not place it upon the market at any time during the year except for the Feast of the Passover.

Quips and Quiddities

"Could you be satisfied with love in a cottage, dearest?" sighed the poor young man. "Certainly I could," responded the girl, who really loved him: "but there must be a breakfast room, a music room, parquetry flooring and a big marble fireplace in the front hall."

* * *

"How is it that nobody ever ventures to discuss the war with Jinks, and he has all the talking to himself?"

"Well, you see, he's the only fellow in the club who knows how to pronounce the names of those Russian and Polish jawbreaker towns."

* * *

"Ma," remonstrated Bobby, "when I was at grandma's she used to let me have two pieces of cake."

"Well, she ought to have done so, Bobby," said his mother. "I think two pieces of cake are too much for little boys. The older you grow the more wisdom you will gain."

Bobby was silenced, but only for a moment.

"Well, ma," he said, "grandma is a good deal older than you are."

* * *

We gazed pityingly on the listless drug store clerk leaning against the soda counter.

"Haven't you any ambition?" we queried kindly and all that.

"No," he replied, with brightening intelligence; "but I have something just as good."

* * *

A mother told her small son she would punish him if he ever asked for anything to eat while at a neighbor's house.

The next time he went over to call on the neighbor he sat still for a few minutes, then he said:

"Now, I must go. Do you know why I must go? Well, I'm hungry, that's why."—Woman's Home Companion.

While on parade a colonel noticed a careless man to have very muddy heels, while the remainder of his attire was in keeping with military propriety.

"Corporal Moriarty," said the chief, "you have very muddy heels."

"Yes, colonel, a good soldier never looks behind him."

THE ALASKAN OPPORTUNITY

I.—AGRICULTURE

By Frederic J. Haskin

NOW that the president of the United States has formally set his hand to the building of a railroad into the heart of Alaska, that the route has been definitely determined, that provision has been made for appropriating $26,800,000 for the great task, it may not be amiss to survey the field and determine just what are the possibilities of planting homes in this region.

* * *

The American is instinctively a pioneer and ever on the alert for new lands to settle. The generations that have marked a step across the great areas of a continent have developed the spirit of the conquest of the wild which has become a tradition with them and there seemed no more frontiers to conquer. The descendants of pioneers are therefore likely to ask themselves if a new opportunity is being here opened to them.

* * *

The wise pioneer, who ascertains all the facts before he heeds the call, will find much in the Alaskan situation that will surprise him—points in favor of a venture there of which he never dreamed, and difficulties standing in the way to overcome which it seems next to impossible. Obstacles, however, are the meat upon which pioneers feed and they probably will not be deterred in the present instance.

* * *

The first misapprehension to be corrected is that as to climate. The visitor to Alaska may make the trip in winter time, may skirt the coast for 1,500 miles, may traverse the placid, inland seas that lie between the many islands and mainland, may reach Seward, from which point the railroad is to strike for the interior, and yet may encounter no temperature as low as those prevailing at the same time in Virginia. In fact all this great coastline is much milder in its winter climate than is the Mississippi valley. The thermometer almost never goes down to zero. It is warmer in the winter than in Washington, D. C., but a bit cooler in summer, making the annual mean temperature about the same as that of the Capital.

* * *

So, from the standpoint of climate, this coastal region, warmed by the waters of the Pacific, would be a locality not unfavorable to the planting of homes and the pursuit of agriculture, but of course, is but the fringe of Alaska. The square block of it that lies beyond the mountains and that is twice as big as Texas, has an entirely different climate. The winters are long and cold and dark. But the interior is not a region of perpetual snow and ice. As a matter of fact, the greatest ice field in Alaska pushes down into the warm waters of the Pacific. In the interior the snowfall is not great and melts off early in the spring. Throughout the summer season the sun pours down its warmth for twenty hours a day upon a land that knows no frosts, and vegetation grows almost as it might in a tropical jungle.

So it happens that interior Alaska, even that portion of it within the Arctic circle, has real weather which, for four months, crowds quick-growing crops to an abundant maturity. At Fairbanks, in the center of the great interior and the terminus of the proposed railroad, strawberries are grown that rival those of Florida. Great wheat fields of Canada and Russia are in readiness that have climates not greatly different from that of interior Alaska. Farmer Jonathan Byler, twelve miles out of Fairbanks, reported one year that he grew on a four-acre farm, among other vegetables, thirteen and one-half tons of potatoes which he sold at 7 cents a pound and cleaned up $1,890.

* * *

All of which facts, presented singly or collectively, might lead to the conclusion that there were great agricultural possibilities in Alaska. There probably are, but there are great drawbacks as well, and it is important that the prospective pioneer should bear these in mind.

* * *

There is the 2,000 miles of southern coast warmed by the Pacific, for instance. In all that stretch there is very little land fit for growing crops. The region is too mountainous, in the first place. It rises to its maximum of 20,000 feet at Mount McKinley, and 18,000 feet at Mount St. Elias. The warm and moisture-laden winds from the Pacific are borne to great heights up these mountain slopes. The cold of high altitudes causes their moisture to be precipitated and these slopes become regions of heavy rain and snowfall. The precipitation ranges from ninety to 150 inches in a year. Most magnificent forests grow on these mountainsides, but the region is so wet that neither hay nor grain may be cured and the lowlands are mostly turned into swamps.

The best farming lands of the coastal region are just where they are needed—in the valleys of the Susitna, the Matanuska and the Copper rivers. These are all rich mineral regions and are soon to be full of people. They are all on the line of the railroad that is to be. The Chugach mountains, near the coast, cause the precipitation of much of the moisture, carried by the winds from the ocean, before they reach the basins of these rivers. There is therefore less rainfall. There are bottoms along these rivers, and level lands on the benches above them. Upon these have already been planted farms and are destined to be planted many more. In these coastal basins it is estimated that there are, altogether, about 3,000 square miles of tillable land, an area half as big as the state of New Jersey.

* * *

On these farm lands near the coast the most advisable crops are hardy and quick-growing vegetables of all kinds. Potatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, carrots, parsnips, onions, strawberries, gooseberries, cranberries, blueberries and many such hardy small fruits grow well. The whole coastal region is overrun with excellent grasses and much of it is well fitted to grazing. Much valuable hay might be cured if the overfrequent rains could be avoided.

* * *

The impression, which has gone abroad, that there are extensive regions in the interior of Alaska to which the possibility of open grain-raising, as upon the steppes of Russia, may be possible, is incorrect. Interior Alaska is a chaos of mountains and there are no level plains. The climate would allow of grain-raising, but the topography almost entirely interferes with it. The only lands that would lend themselves to farming in the interior are those along the river bottoms.

* * *

The proposed railroad will run 471 miles into the interior to Fairbanks, the metropolis. Though Fairbanks has always had placer gold as its chief interest, it happens to be located in the center of the best belt of farming land in all Alaska. It is on the Tanana river of which the valley opens up more than miles above Fairbanks and extends twice as far below. Altogether there are 8,000 square miles in this region, an area as great as Massachusetts, that may ultimately be cultivated.

In the same general region are the Yukon flats, which afford the biggest farming area in all Alaska. This great stream, fifth in size in North America, navigable for more than 2,000 miles and, with its tributaries, offering 4,000 miles of water highway for the craft of the world, enters a region of comparatively level land 1,500 miles from its mouth. This point is not far from the Fairbanks region. It is known as the Yukon flats. It is a valley 150 miles long and from fifty to seventy-five miles wide. There are the lowlands near the stream, bench lands that rise above them, and back of this the low hills. Of these three, the hill lands are the best. There are probably 16,000 square miles of tillable land in the Yukon valley, a region as big as Maryland and Delaware combined.

* * *

So will it be seen that there are, out of the 590,000 square miles of Alaska, not more than 30,000 square miles that may ever be sown to crops. The sprawling crab of semi-continent that might rest one claw on Jacksonville, Fla., and the other on Los Angeles, has not as much tillable land as there are square miles in the state of South Carolina.

The experiment stations at Fairbanks and at Rampart, but seventy-five miles from the Arctic circle, have proved that hardy grains, barleys, ryes, oats, wheats, may be matured in this inner Alaska region. They have shown that a wide range of truck, of which potatoes are of prime importance, may be here grown. But they have taken great pains to explain that there are certain obstacles to be overcome.

* * *

In the first place there is the abundant moss that covers the land like a blanket. It is not advisable to plow this moss under as it would require years for it to decay and its effect on the land is bad. It is wise to try to get the conditions right and burn it off. This is accomplished with difficulty.

* * *

Underneath the moss, three or four feet down, the ground is still frozen. This is partly due to the moss, which is a non-conductor of heat. The thaw will go deeper after the moss is taken off. But because of the presence of this ice there is no escape below for the surplus moisture. The lands remain too wet. Horses bog down. Roads remain impassable. This sheet of ice below the surface is a great handicap to Alaska as a farming region.

These are but obstacles. The pioneer will be able to farm despite them just as he has conquered by irrigation the reverse conditions of drought on the desert. Many farmers are already growing crops and selling them at fancy prices. The demand will be much greater before the government's $26,000,000 is spent in railroad building, and when the great mines are opened up. With the demand will come new agricultural efforts.

* * *

Hillsides that face the southern sun, that therefore catch its rays perpendicularly, get more of them to a given area, and absorb more of their heat, will soon be one be cleared off and find their way into crop beaning. No region in Alaska will ever become a solid farming community, but its barren reaches will sometimes be spotted with sun-facing hills that will yield, during the brief growing period, the green stuff that is needed to keep the scurvy from the ranks of the strong men who wrestle with her other vast resources.

TROLLOPE'S CENTENARY

IT IS NOT strange that while Anthony Trollope, the centenary of whose birth is celebrated today, easily holds fourth place among Victorian novelists, his name is scarcely as familiar as even Reade, Blackmore or Kingsley. Each of these wrote one novel which is all but universally read, while Trollope's half-dozen best books stand on the same level of solid but undistinguished excellence. Take away "Lorna Doone," "The Cloister and the Hearth," and "Westward Ho!" and Blackmore, Reade and Kingsley are infinitely reduced in fame; take away "Barchester Towers," "The Warden" and "The Small House at Allington," and we still have "Framley Parsonage," "The Last Chronicle of Barset," and at least two or three others. It is characteristic of a writer whose great merit was complete grasp of the usual, that he produced no unusual book. And it is natural that his appeal should persist in plodding, sturdy fashion. In his own time, when his patient, robust directness was in sharp contrast with Dickens's pictorial humor, with Thackeray's satire and penetration, and with George Eliot's sense of the deeper philosophy of life, he won his audience by making it so intimately acquainted with his characters that it saw in his scenes an ordinary illusion of life. Those are two literary tastes, as Henry James tells us—the taste for emotions of surprise, and that for emotions of recognition. It is the latter that insures life to the clerical series, "Phineas Finn," "The Bertrams," and "The Claverings."

Trollope's outstanding excellence is the verisimilitude of his individual characters. Only one or two—Mrs. Proudie, Archdeacon Grantley, Mr. Harding—are creations of the first order; but all are concentrations of human qualities in the sober truth. The composite picture he gives of the clergy, the aristocracy, the administrative and civil service classes, of some political groups, is admirable; but it arises from his experiness with the humors and foibles of typical individuals. His style is unassuming. Of direct description he has little; of humor and satire, passages that are effective only in a lumbering way; while the sharp reaction to life which demands an analytic probing of character, an ironic rather than a comfortable philosophy of existence, had no attraction to Trollope. He wrote simply, and carried forward with heavy-footed vigor. Though he insisted that having a story to tell was the first prerequisite to writing, his stories amount to little. The love element is almost always the "eternal triangle." His social situations seldom depart from the simplicity of his first book, "The Warden," which is merely the narrative of an old man, happy in a church sinecure with a large salary, who becomes the object of attack by reformers, and ends by himself being convinced that he is wrong and resigning. But the slow pace is not tedious, the broad outlines are given detail by an inexhaustible flow of illustrative incident and a command of wonderfully faithful and animated dialogue. Exactly how a villain like Mr. Crosbie feels after he has been thrashed by the lover of the girl he jilts; exactly what the new bishop says in private to his wife after he has put down his imprudent enemies; what Mr. Moulder says as he carves the turkey so admirably—Trollope tells us with knowledge and sympathy. It was this that attracted Hawthorne, who wrote that the novels, at the antipodes from his own fanciful work, "precisely suit my taste—solid and substantial, written on the strength of beef and the inspiration of ale, and just as real as if some giant had hewn a great lump out of the earth and put it under a glass case, with all its inhabitants going unconcerned about their business."

And there is something in Trollope typical of the whole realm of the English novel. He lacks the higher endowments of precision, taste, form, intellectual penetration. One can imagine Flaubert's exclamation if he had read Trollope's naive admission that the best book he ever wrote was "Orley Farm," with the fault of declaring itself and thus coming to an end in the middle of the tale." It is easy to imagine Meredith's opinion, or that of French novelists, of the large-fisted, undiscriminating handling of the brush with which Trollope elaborates an incident or figure. And of the vast fluidity of his output—novel after novel turned out at schedule rate. But he has wholesomeness, kindliness, gusto; a keen sense of the moral values of character, and for what constitutes human interest; and his arrangement of what he writes fails in artistry, he has under his hands a wealth of material such as many of greater deftness lack. In his methods of composition is exhibited a typically British character. He was a fox hunter who defended his sport valiantly; he bore a prominent part in the improvement of the British postal service; he traveled on four continents, he loved the publishers, clubs, and dinner parties of the metropolis. But he managed to write novels under such control that he wrote for hours in the train, and in his ocean trips had a desk fixed for him in his stateroom. As mere industry, his habit of blocking each novel into so many days' work, and doing each part in the allotted period, has something respectable, as evidence of his ability to exclude from his mind at will all but the sorrows of Lily Dale or the love affairs of the three clerks, it is admirable. He tells how naturally and fully he felt that he must be wrong in the main characters, and thence has come whatever success I have obtained. There is a gallery of them, and of all in that gallery I may say that I know the tone of the voice and the color of the hair, every flame of the eye, and the very clothes they wore."

It would be hard to name any definite disciplenod of Trollope, such as Dickens or George Eliot may be said to have left. In the work of Arnold Bennett of John Ayscough, perhaps even of DeMorgan, may be traced Trollopean elements; but his influence is likely to be of a diffused and not readily perceptible sort. His true eye, his genial heart, and honest mind deserve more appreciation than—from the unwieldy character of his work—they are likely to get. It is to be wished that the realists who follow him could profit by his one great error—that of writing too much. He always maintained that his most rapid work was his best, being that in which he was so impregnated with his own creations that his only excitement was to sit with the pen in his hand. But he also warned young writers against the composition that became a habit, and that went on whether the mind had done its necessary preliminary work of observation and reflection or not. Into the pit offered by his facility he fell, and great portions of all that he did are—by any permanent standard—labor lost.—New York Evening Post.

ALUMNI SECRETARY OF VANDERBILT IN ATLANTA

New Department Will Be Similar to Those of Yale and Harvard

Charles Cason, alumni secretary of Vanderbilt university, a new position recently created by the university and filled by the alumni, is in Atlanta for the purpose of getting in touch with Vanderbilt alumni in this city, and was their guest at luncheon Friday at the Capital City club.

The university has established and proposes to develop an alumni department similar to those maintained by Yale, Harvard, Chicago and the other great universities of the country. It is the first university in the south to take this step. Mr. Cason is in charge of the department, with the title of alumni secretary, is paid a salary by the university, and banks as a member of the university faculty.

Discussing the university and its plans, Mr. Cason had the following to say:

"Vanderbilt university has entered upon a new era. Its status is definitely established. It knows where it stands. Its outlook is broader than ever before, and it can and is planning and working toward definite ends.

WILL ORGANIZE.

"One of the movements undertaken by the university is the organization of the alumni. Of this work I can speak with more detailed knowledge as I am in charge of it as alumni secretary.

"Heretofore the alumni of Vanderbilt have not been thoroughly organized. Now the university proposes to organize them and make them a power for the upbuilding of the institution. They will be organized by communities and states and these will be merged into a general organization. The university will undertake to locate every alumnus, and keep in touch with him and keep him in touch with the other alumni. To this end te department plans the publication of a magazine especially devoted to the alumni.

"Moreover, the department will perfect a permanent organization for every graduating class. The class of 1915, 200 strong, has already organized and elected a secretary to serve for a term of years. He will keep in touch with the members of the class and through him the university will keep in touch with them. The 1915 class has formed a fund, to be paid by the members of the class within twelve years after graduation, which will amount to $20,000 when paid in. Future graduating classes will be encouraged to do the same.

"In every department the university is looking forward as never before. The freshman academic class this year is the largest by 33 per cent in the history of the institution.

"The medical department has recently received bids for a magnificent new chemical laboratory building and the hospital is being enlarged. Hereafter one year's academic work will be required before entering the medical department. The department will grade as an A-1 medical school.

THEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

"The theological department, or Biblical department, as it is called, will hereafter be non-sectarian and will emphasize the points of agreement between the various creeds, rather than the points of difference. Its faculty will be composed of men of the highest ability representing various denominations. In addition to training young men for the ministry, it will train young men for Y. M. C. A. work and for social service work.

"The whole spirit of the university is wonderfully renewed and optimistic. Students, faculty and board of trustees are welded together in a compact, cohesive, aggressive and ethusiastic organization, and with this organization the university, by means of the alumni department, proposes to connect up the organized power of Vanderbilt graduates everywhere.

"As I said before, Vanderbilt has entered upon a new era. And standing upon the threshold of this new era, she is inspired with a new hope and a new purpose. Under the magnificent leadership of Chancellor James H. Kirkland, she aspires to become one of the great institutions of learning in America, and this ambition and spirit are backed by the resources necessary to achieve success."

MR. E. P. M'DOWELL BURIED IN ACWORTH

The funeral of Mr. Eugene P. McDowell, twenty-seven years old, the printer who committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in his office Wednesday night, was held at Acworth, Ga., his former home, Thursday morning. The interment was in Acworth.

McDowell, according to testimony before the coroner's jury, was found by his assistant, J. L. Barnett, about 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night in his office in the L. & N. terminal building, dean. CREW OF THE MANNING IS BELIEVED TO BE LOST

POINT PLEASANT, N. J., April 30.—Identification of the bulk of a sailing ship beached on Hampton bar by the cutter Heminole as the four-masted schooner John B. Manning, leads to the belief in shipping circles that Captain Tyler Curtis, his father, Jacob Curtis, and the crew of ten on the Manning have been lost.

The Manning sailed from Fernandina for Philadelphia March 24, and was caught in a hurricane off Hatteras on the night of April 2. She was seen in distress by Captain Frye, of the schooner M. D. Cressey.

AN EASY WAY TO GET RID OF SKIN-TROUBLES

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rash and similar itching, burning skin troubles.

At any reliable druggist's get a jar of resinol ointment and a cake of resinol soap. These will not cost a bit more than seventy-five cents. With the resinol soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resinol ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again. For trial of resinol ointment and resinol soap, free, write to Dept. 21-R, Resinol Baltimore, Md. (Advt.)

TWO MEN INJURED BY EXPLOSION IN ARMORY

National Guard Officers Are Making Investigation of Cause of Accident

Adjutant General J. Van Holt Nash and other officers of the Georgia national guard are making an investigation of an explosion of ammunition Thursday night, which shook a part of the auditorium-armory and painfully injured Corporal John Edwards and Private Charles Kiker, Battery B, Georgia artillery.

A courtmartial, which will be largely in the nature of a continued inquiry, may follow the first investigation. The explosion occurred just before a class of young artillerymen assembled to hear a lecture by Lieutenant B. M. Bailey, U. S. A.

According to reports, one of the injured men dropped a lighted cigarette into a handful of powder, which had sifted from a saluting shell. The ignition of this powder lighted more loose powder in the ammunition limber and the explosion, which blew open the tinder limber, resulted. Corporal Edwards and Private Kiker were hurled to the floor by the force of the explosion. Colonel Orville H. Hall, of the Fifth regiment, who was in the armory, went immediately to the scene of the accident and the injured men were moved under his direction to the Grady hospital, where their painful burns were dressed. The hospital authorities stated that the men could be removed to their homes, but Colonel Hall and Lieutenant Bailey urged that they remain overnight at the institution so that special care could be taken to obliterate powder marks on their hands and faces.

After the injured men had been carried to the hospital Lieutenant Bailey proceeded with his lecture. The powder which caused the explosion is presumed to have been jostled from saluting shells when the ammunition wagon was driven over Belgian blocks in the Memorial day parade. The saluting shells were not charged with high power explosives.

The accident is the first which has occurred in the auditorium-armory. It did little damage except to shake down some plastering, which is said to have been already loose. The explosion occurred near the artillery entrance on Courtland street, not the main entrance to the auditorium.

H. C. WIGGINS NOT BLAMED FOR MRS. SCHLEY'S DEATH

Case of Reckless Driving Against Postal Railway Clerk Dismissed

H. C. Wiggins, a postal railway clerk, who was driving the automobile which ran over and killed Mrs. Virginia Schley, seventy-five years old, near her home, 590 Peachtree street, recently, was tried before Recorder Johnson Thursday and the case of reckless driving against him was dismissed.

"In approaching and crossing a street at a greater speed than six miles an hour, you were violating the state law," the recorder told Wiggins, "but I do not think you are guilty of running your machine in a reckless manner. This accident was one of those unavoidable and regrettable occurrences that will happen."

THEATERS

Toby Claude and her troupe of musical and vocal stars continue to please the audience at the Forsyth this week. Many of the most topical selections from late musical successes are offered, including selections from her own successes, "A Chinese Honeymoon," "Fantana," and "The Belle of New York." Norman Hackett maintains the popularity he gained while playing stock at the Lyric last season. His offering is "Cinch," a delightful dramatic sketch. Lucy Gillette, "The Lady From Delf," thrills with her juggling; the Monarch Comedy Four purvey an abundance of brand new comedy and harmony; Eunice Burnham and Charles Irwin are exceptional performers vocally and at the piano; Nelson and Nelson, acrobats, open the bill to the best advantage in months, and Rooney's "A Night in a Monkey Music Hall," is one of the funniest trained animal acts on the stage.

In accordance with the Grand's pretentious picture policy, two of the biggest photo-play offerings of the week are scheduled for today and tomorrow in "Help Wanted" and "The Lily of Poverty Flats." "Help Wanted" is the comedy-drama success that is now holding the legitimate boards on Broadway, and in which Emma Bunting, the Atlanta favorite, is being starred. It is one of the cleverest and most delightful film dramas of the season. "The Lily of Poverty Flats" is a stirring western drama, written as only Bret Harte could write, and impersonated by filmland's most beautiful star, Beatriz Michelena.

NEW ROUTE IS PROPOSED FOR THE DIXIE HIGHWAY

DeKalb, Clayton, Henry, Butts and Monroe Counties Are After Road

A new route from Atlanta to Macon has been projected by the counties of DeKalb, Clayton, Henry, Butts and Monroe, and the authorities of these counties, with other prominent citizens, will urge that the route be selected for the Dixie highway between these cities.

A delegation representing the counties came to Atlanta Thursday and called on Clark Howell, one of the two Georgia members of the commission which will locate the highway, for the purpose of submitting to him the advantages of the route from historic, scenic and topographical standpoints, and to offer assurances of placing every mile of the route in first class condition for automobile tourists in time for the opening of the Dixie highway.

In the delegation were J. O. Gaston, county commissioner of Butts county; John Bryans, county commissioner of Henry county, and Dr. J. G. Smith, Dr. B. E. Horton and J. T. Weems, citizens of Henry county.

They declared the counties on the new route are greatly enthused over good roads and will construct the whole route whether it is selected by the Dixie highway or not.

Another Dixie highway enthusiast who called on Mr. Howell Thursday was W. J. Headden, of Austell, chairman of the roads and bridges of the Cobb county commissioners.

When Glands Swell Blood Needs Attention

Even a Sweat Gland May Result in Severe Consequence.

In our intricate body the use of S. S. S. for the blood has a most remarkable influence. We little realize our glandular system. It may be a tiny bulb no bigger than a pin point, and yet if a disease germ gets into it, there is a tremendous swelling. It becomes a boil, a carbuncle, it may be a "blood poison," and it is often a source of continuous misery if not checked. Many of the most excruciating forms of torture begin with the swelling of a tiny gland, caused by a disease germ. And it is S. S. S. that spreads throughout the blood circulation to prevent just such conditions. Or if they have already started, S. S. S. will soon put the blood in such a state of health as to overcome the tendency to glandular swellings. It is a natural medicine for the blood, just as essential to health if the blood be impure, as are the meats, fats, grains and sugars of our daily food.

It contains one ingredient the active purpose of which is to stimulate the exchange of new flesh for dead or waste matter.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today of any druggist, and if your case is stubborn, write to the Medical Adviser, The Swift Specific Co., 108 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. This department is in charge of a noted physician.

DIAMOND RINGS STOLEN FROM MRS. SEABROOK

Jewelry, Worth $1,000 Stolen While She Attended Grand Opera Matinee

A burglar entered the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Seabrook, in the Virginian on Peachtree street, while Mrs. Seabrook was at the grand opera matinee Thursday, and stole three of Mrs. Seabrook's diamond rings, valued at $1,000.

Mrs. Seabrook discovered the robbery when she returned home at 5:45 o'clock. she called police station and asked that a detective be sent to investigate. The call was answered by a detective and by Chief Beavers. They took a description of the rings and make an investigation.

It developed in this investigation that a neatly dressed white man, apparently 21 years old, rang the bell of an adjoining apartment while Mrs. Seabrook was away, and when the bell was answered by a negro servant, he made certain inquiries which elicited the information that the Seabrooks were out and the servant was gone.

Several other homes were robbed Thursday afternoon while the occupants were out.

Among these were the apartment of Mrs. S. L. Maye, 32 East avenue, and the adjoining apartment of Mrs. A. M. Perkerson, 34 East avenue, where the rooms were ransacked and trunks, bureaus and wardrobes turned inside out.

A large amount of clothing was stolen from the residence of Mrs. Jordan, 283 Central avenue, and a gas meter was robbed at 110 West Harris street.

Returning home late in the afternoon, J. Newton Shepard and family, of 52 Kelly street, found a negro in the dining room. He fled through the back door and escaped.

The pure lustrous silk of Kayser Gloves immediately suggests the lustre of pearls

The correct glove for traveling is the Queen Elizabeth style in sand, putty, pongee or smoke

The silk in Kayser Silk Gloves is the reason for their lasting

More women wear them than all other silk gloves combined. Millions of women and twelve thousand dealers prefer Kayser Silk Gloves not merely because they are the best known gloves in Europe and America but because they have found out from actual experience that:

Kayser Silk Gloves wear so much better The very foundation of Kayser Gloves—the Kayser Silk—is pure and strong. Fine workmanship alone could not make Kayser Gloves wear longer if the silk itself were not right. In 30 years of silk spinning, we have learned how to make use of a heavier pure silk thread (no weighting) without interfering with the delightful coolness of the gloves. You therefore get a silkier glove but not a heavier one. This makes Kayser Silk Gloves wear so much longer that millions of women have learned that the one thing to look for in a silk glove is the trade-mark "Kayser."

Modeled perfectly, they heighten the beauty of the hand and arm Notice especially the shape of Kayser Silk Gloves, and how gracefully they fit the hand.

The beauty of their appearance lasts, because the purity and strength of the Kayser Silk resist stretching. Even after they have been washed, their lustre and fit are unimpaired.

Kayser Silk Gloves cost no more than the ordinary kind; two clasp are always 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 and up; twelve and sixteen button lengths are always 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and up.

The name "Kayser" is always in the hem and with each pair is a guarantee ticket that the tips will outwear the gloves.

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, April 30.—German submarine sank eight British vessels outside the North sea in February, sixteen in March, but only six in April, according to the Daily Mail's naval correspondent, who says:

WILSON URGES INSPECTION OF SIBERIAN WAR CAMPS

President Sends Note to Czar at Request of Austro-Hungarian Government

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 30.—In official circles today it was confidently expected that although negotiations conducted through American diplomatic channels with the Russian government looking to inspection by American representatives of detention camps for prisoners of war in Siberia have come to naught, President Wilson's personal efforts in that direction would result in early action. The president, at the request of the Austro-Hungarian government, has written to Emperor Nicholas urging this inspection.

Russia never has acted upon a proposal by Germany for inspection of detention camps in the respective countries similar to Germany's arrangement with Great Britain.

VIOLENT WIND STORM SWEEPS PACIFIC COAST

(By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—Two persons are known to be dead and it was feared other lives were lost in a violent wind storm which last night reached a velocity of nearly 100 miles an hour.

The wireless station on the Farallone islands reported that a launch with five men disappeared to the leeward of the islands and wreckage later was washed ashore.

Property damage in this vicinity is estimated at $200,000, and the damage at other coast points is known to be considerable.

On Monterey bay fifty-four small boats were piled up on the beach.

PRICE OF LONDON BEER WILL NOT BE RAISED

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, April 30.—The general opinion of liquor wholesalers is that the new liquor tax will not affect the retail price of beer, but will compel all brewers to brew below the specific gravity of 43, at which the surtax begins. This gravity is equivalent to containing 7 per cent alcohol. Most London beers now range from 43 to 58.

The new whisky tax will result in virtual doubling of retail prices.

CHINA WILL REPLY TO JAP DEMAND SATURDAY

No Land Wanted

VENICE, April 30.—Count Julius Andrassy, former Hungarian minister of the interior, has written a book, just published at Budapest entitled "Who is Responsible for the War?"

The book has receive dofficial approval and is to be published in German at Leipsic and Berlin, and in Switzerland in French. A version in English will also be brought out.

The count argues in his book that Slav aspirations brought about the war, and that the Russian ambition to possess the Dardanelles contributed greatly to it.

He asserts that Austria and Germany had no intention in the beginning of territorial aggradizement, and argues them not to think of it when final victory is won.

He thinks they should be satisfied with monetary compensation, and that any territorial additions to their boundaries would not look well or prove of any great advantage.

A REAL FLESH BUILDER FOR THIN PEOPLE

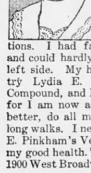
A New Discovery

Thin men and women—that big, hearty filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body unburned, real nourishment from your meals. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are shut out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and fussy system diets. Omit the flesh cream producers, cut out everything but the meals you are eating now and eat with every one of them a Sargol tablet. In two weeks note the difference. Put on eight good solid pounds of healthy, active flesh—"there" fat should be the net result. Sargol puts your rich, stagnant blood with millions of fresh new red blood corpuscles—gives the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food and prepares it for the blood in easily assimilated form. Thin people gain as the way from 5 to 15 pounds a month when taking Sargol, and the new flesh stays on. Sargol tablets are a scientific combination of six of the best flesh-producing elements known to chemistry. They are tasteless to a degree, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, as Jacobs' Pharmacy and all other druggists in Atlanta and vicinity sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back.—(Advt.)

WOMAN REFUSES OPERATION

Tells How She Was Saved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



Louisville, Ky.—"I think if more suffering women would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound they would enjoy better health. I suffered from a female trouble, and the doctor decided I had a tumorous growth and would have to be operated upon, but I refused as I had not believed in operations. I had fainting spells, bloated and could hardly stand the pain in my left side. My husband insisted that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful I did, for I am now a well woman. I sleep better, do all my housework and take long walks. I never fail to praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my good health."—Mrs. J. M. RESCH, 1900 West Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, it is not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in like manner?

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

BRILLIANT ENTERTAINMENT AT DRUID HILLS GOLF CLUB

GERALDINE FARRAR, off the stage and ready for a drive under Georgia skies. The beautiful young American soprano is at her best this season, the picture of rosy health and in fine voice. She will give Atlanta the first glimpse of her in a comedy role when she sings "Madame Sans Gene" Saturday night.

The al fresco entertainment given Thursday evening at the Druid Hills golf club was one of the largest and most beautiful of the series that have been given at this attractive club, and one of the most enjoyable of the many bright affairs that have marked the week of grand opera in Atlanta.

Dinner was served promptly at 8 in the large dining room and tables were also placed in the palm garden. From the musicians' gallery a program of exquisite music was rendered during dinner, followed later in the evening by popular dance music. The terraces were bathed in moonlight and strings of electric lit lanterns in the grounds added to the picturesque scene. The dance that followed dinner was a delightful occasion and showed to advantage the beautiful toilets worn by hostesses, visitors and by many of the stars of the Metropolitan who were guests of the evening.

Great Artists Sing.

Following dinner a rare pleasure was given the assembled guests by the singing of the celebrated artists who were present. The duet by Miss Lucrezia Bori and Andres de Segurola drew round after round of applause. Madame Frieda Hempel sang a lullaby with exquisite feeling and the singing of "Annie Laurie" by Miss Anita Case brought tears to many eyes. Beautiful selections from the operas were sung by Miss Isabel Richardson and Miss Elizabeth Sumarall. The rooms resounded with the melody which was wafted out to the grace of the breathless silence elected. Later the Maxixe was danced by Miss Case and Mr. Segurola.

Rainbow Effect of Beautiful Costumes.

Pastel shades predominated in the beautiful creations of satin, taffeta and tulle worn by the guests. Mrs. William Lawson Peel was gowned in white satin, brocaded with silver. Mrs. Hugh Richardson wore white net draped over pearl-colored satin and embroidered with seed pearls. Miss Montgomery and Miss Mary Orme, of New Orleans, and Miss Rosa Bogeckl, of Montgomery, were among the charming visitors whose gowns of satin and tulle combined the pastel shades so much in vogue.

Mrs. Robert F. Maddox wore white Chantilly net draped with tulle with garnitures of contrasting black.

Mrs. James R. Gray, Jr., wore pale green taffeta, combined with chiffon, a French embroidery of clover blossoms being introduced upon the bodice and outlined on the full skirt.

Mrs. Robert L. Cooper's pretty gown combined Dresden shades of palest pink and blue.

Mrs. H. M. Atkinson wore pale colored lace over satin and Mrs. May Atkinson was gowned in pale blue taffeta silk.

Mrs. Edwin Johnson was very handsome in a gown of fillet net draped over a foundation of satin and combined with tulle.

Miss Viola Johnson, of Macon, and Mrs. J. Campbell Maben, of Birmingham, were among the visitors present who wore evening gowns of striking and beautiful design. Mrs. John W. Grant was gowned in white satin. The black draperies of the beautiful gown were encrusted with silver. Mrs. Beaumont S. Davidson wore a gown of white taffeta combined with thread lace and tulle. Mrs. Inman Gray was gowned in rose pink taffeta, the bodice clouded with tulle. Mrs. J. A. Gallogly wore a pretty gown of flesh-colored crepe de chine combined with chiffon embroidered with a tracery of silver. Mrs. Wilis Westmoreland was gowned in shades of turquoise blue combined with silver. Mrs. Harry English was gowned in ethereal green chiffon draped over satin, the edge of the tunic encrusted with rhinestones and Mrs. James R. D. Robson's gown of white satin was clouded with tulle. Mrs. E. M. Durham, Jr., of Birmingham, Ala., wore a lovely model of pink taffeta and tulle.

Many Guests Present.

Among those present were Miss Mary Rouse, of New Orleans; Miss Anne Kilpatrick, of Alabama; Miss Montgomery, of New Orleans; Miss Olivia Bogacki, of Montgomery, Ala.; Miss Isabella Tyson, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Miss Esther Smith, Miss Isabel Robinson, Miss Marian Dodgenhilt, Miss Viola Johnson, of Macon; Miss Katherine Ellis, Miss Marie Louise Villers, of New Orleans; Mr. Don Redmond, Mr. John Handley, Mr. Stanley Matheson, Mr. James Ragan, Mr. Charlie Tyson, of Knoxville; Mr. Cator Bedford, Mr. Walter Hill, Mr. John Spence Hill, Mr. Alfriend, Mr. Lamar Hill, Dr. J. Included among the brilliant affairs planned for opera week was the 5 o'clock tea at which Mr. and Mrs. John Edgar Murphy entertained Friday afternoon in honor of Miss Geraldine Farrar. The occasion afforded many friends of the noted opera singer an opportunity of personal greeting, as on former visits to Atlanta Miss Farrar has been unable to accept the social courtesies planned for her.

The guests arrived through the front avenue of trees, which were showered with electric lights, and at the entrance of the wide veranda marshalling each side of the open doorway were two great French wall baskets filled with variegated spring blossoms. Suspended the full length of the porch were hanging baskets of feathery ferns and rose lights dropping through the foliage.

In the Louis IV parlor, the Du Barry rose draperies made a very effective background for the artistic decorations of pink and white lilacs and snapdragons arranged in crystal vases.

The guests were received here by Mr. and Mrs. Murphy and Miss Farrar. The honor guest was exquisitely gowned in the airiest of summer creations worn with a picture hat. Mrs. Murphy wore a gown of cream filet lace finished with a girdle of soft pink satin and her hat was a beautiful model of pink Georgette crepe trimmed in a wreath of pink pond lilies. Both honor guest and hostess held exquisite muffs of pink and blue chiffon caught with flowers in pastel shades and fringed with valley lilies.

The library, hung with green tapestries, was decorated with stately American beauty roses and the marble mantle at the end of the reception hall held two silver vases filled with American beauty roses.

The large round table in the dining room made a beautiful picture. The centerpiece was a filet lace cover on which rested a large silver loving cup filled with pink and white snapdragons encircled by slender silver candlesticks with filet lace revealing pink silk shades. Sweets and ices were served from the center table and sandwiches occupied the buffet table, which was adorned with French baskets holding pink and white snapdragons, roses and carnations.

The chandelier in the breakfast room was hung with green grapes and the punch bowl rested in a mound of yellow roses. In the sun parlor and throughout the house yellow-breasted canaries in gold cages were hung among the foliage plants and cakes were embossed with little singing birds and the initials of the noted honor guest.

An orchestra rendered bright music during the afternoon hours.

Miss Mamie Gatins, wearing a lovely gown of white lace with touches of blue, and Miss Julia Murphy in a dainty garden costume of white net and lace, served punch and assisted in entertaining.

Also assisting Mr. and Mrs. Murphy in entertaining were Governor and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, Colonel Robert J. Lowry, Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Oglesby, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson, Dr. and Mrs. W. Mrs. Murphy Gives Beautiful Entertainment for Miss Geraldine Farrar

Roddey-Ward

A beautiful event of Thursday evening was the wedding of Miss Marguerite Ward and Mr. Charles Frederick Roddey, which was solemnized at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. E. C. Ward, on Ponce de Leon avenue. Bishop Warren A. Candler performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and friends.

The attendants included Miss Madge Horne, maid of honor, and Mr. Lee Harvey, best man. Miss Louise Parker and Miss Elojse Walker were ribbon bearers, and the bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Jesse L. Ward.

Smilax and festoons of southern bamboo decorated the walls and handsome palms were grouped throughout the apartment in artistic arrangement. Easter lilies were massed in snowy array and made vivid contrast in their whiteness to the green of palms and ferns.

The maid of honor wore sea green tulle draped over crepe, her large hat was adorned with pink ostrich tips and a flower muff fashioned of pink roses completed the pretty costume.

The bride was very handsome in her wedding robes of duchess satin, rose point lace was introduced upon the bodice and continued in panels on the skirt. Her tulle veil fell from a little cap of lace and her flowers were orchids and valley lilies.

A reception followed the ceremony. The bride's mother, Mrs. Ward, received wearing a handsome gown of old blue taffeta and lace and a corsage of violets. A buffet supper was served and during the evening a beautiful musical program was rendered by an orchestra concealed behind a bank of palms. Punch was served on the veranda by a group of pretty girls.

Among the out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wise, Miss Annie Nolan, of McDonough; Mr. and Mrs. Rosser Ward, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ward, Mrs. C. B. Ward, of Stockbridge; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Swann, of Birmingham, and Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Etheridge, of Jackson.

CHANGES BEING MADE ON NATIONAL HIGHWAY

BARNESVILLE, Ga., April 30.—The Pike road force is now camping here and is at work on the roads in this section of the county. Some very important changes are being made in the national highway which will greatly improve it. East of the city on the Barnesville-Forsyth road it has been straightened in several places and the route from Barnesville to Milner has been changed, making it a mile nearer and affording practically a straight line between the two places. The new route goes by Cauthen's springs. The county commissioners and road officials state that the entire highway through Pike will be put in the very best condition and made the equal of any part of the route between Atlanta and Macon.

Little Stories For Bedtime

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

That is what Prickly Porky the Porcupine told Sammy Jay when Sammy persisted in asking him what he would have to do to become a Quaddy. Sammy likes to argue. Prickly Porky had told him that he couldn't be a Quaddy any way because the Quaddies were little quadrupeds, that is little people with four legs. Of course, Sammy has only two legs. Prickly Porky thought that would settle the matter. He is rather fretful sometimes and doesn't like to be bothered. But Sammy was not to be put rid of so easily.

"That's all right," said Sammy. "I've got two legs and two wings. Those two wings ought to count for two legs. What do you use your legs for? To get about with, don't you? Well, that's what I use my wings for, so why shouldn't they count as legs? They're a lot better than legs anyway. I may not be a quadruped, but I don't see any reason why I shouldn't be a Quaddy if I want to. I don't say I want to, but I might, I just might want to join some time. You haven't told me yet what one has to do."

"Well, for one thing you have to have some good in you. No one who is ill bad can be a Quaddy, and I guess that settles you," retorted Prickly Porky, who was hungry and was losing patience.

Sammy's quick temper flared up right away. "Do you mean to say that I am all bad?" he demanded.

"I'm not saying," replied Prickly Porky. "Go see Peter Rabbit. He's the one who started the Quaddies." With this Prickly Porky turned his back on Sammy and began to eat quite as if no one was there.

Sammy hung around a few minutes, but when he found he could get nothing more from Prickly Porky he flew away, screaming angrily. Presently he spied Happy Jack Squirrel. He knew that Happy Jack was a Quaddy, so he at once began to ask him the same questions he had asked Prickly Porky. Happy Jack was puzzled.

"Of course you are not a quadruped so I don't see how you can be a Quaddy," he replied. "I tell you what, go see Peter Rabbit."

That was all Sammy could get from Happy Jack, so once more he took wing. Presently he saw Danny Meadow Mouse over on the Green Meadows. He stopped to ask Danny the same questions and he got the same answer. "Go see Peter Rabbit."

It was just the same at the Smiling Pool when he talked with Jerry Muskrat and Billy Mink. Sammy was beginning to lose patience. The fact is he didn't want to go see Peter Rabbit He had played so many tricks on Peter that he felt sure that Peter would just be only too glad to refuse to tell him what he wanted to know. Besides he didn't want Peter to suspect that he was at all interested in the Quaddies.

But Sammy is just like most people. The thing he couldn't find out about became all at once the thing he most wanted to know. He couldn't think of anything else. He is so sly and smart that usually he can find out for himself whatever he wants to know, but here was something that he couldn't find out about.

"I won't go near Peter Rabbit!" said he to himself. "I don't want to be a Quaddy anyway."

But right down in his heart he knew that he did want to be a Quaddy. He wanted to be one just because it seemed that he couldn't be one. It often happens that way. The thing that you can't have is the thing that you want. So when at last Sammy just happened to overhear Unc' Billy Possum trying to sing in a funny cracked voice:

Mah name is Billy Possum
And Ah'm a Quaddy too;
To help mah friends and neighbors
•Ah'll try mah best to do.

Sammy suddenly made up his mind. He would go over to the dear Old Briar Patch and see Peter Rabbit.

Many parties were also given at the Capital City club and the hour or more of daylight left was devoted to motor parties through the different country lanes around Atlanta which are so beautiful at this season with the flowering dogwood and pink of the crabapple blossoms.

Pels Make Merry With Dent's Hurling; Whitney Gets Decision Over Hanlon

No Alibi Due On First Game With Pelicans

Two Good Reasons for Locals' Defeat--Birds Buried Dent Beneath Avalanche of Triples and Bagby Worked in Top Forms for Pels--Hiett Due for Mound Duty Today

Of alibis for the defeat of the Crackers by the Pelicans in Thursday's game there are none, for reasons there are two. First Jim Bagby working his second good game of the season against the Crackers, leaving but slight chance to do any damage to Jim's delivery; second a flock of triples by the Pelicans off Ed Dent. To judge from the way those Birds were hammering Eduardo's offerings they were figuring in a "three or no count affair." Had they scraped an out on all ordinary singles and credited themselves with nothing save three-base clouts, they would have scampered home winners by steen lengths and more.

Six triples did the Pels gather from Dent's delivery. Tim Hendryx was the demon trippler. Timothy smashed out three hits and each was good for three bases. Sylvester, Higgins and Bagby added another trio, bringing the total up to six good for eighteen sacks. There's no reminder coming for the Crackers when the opposition wallops the hurling in that fashion. It was a batting practice for the Birds.

An accounting of the day's disaster would reveal a bundle of ghastly details, chief among which was a busy day given by Bob Higgins in the second frame while the bases were packed. Four runs were trotted over in this frame, but Dent was then allowed to recover his balance for the brief period of one frame, and once more he was ducked. Seventh a wave of base hits and other run-producing factors which netted six more counters. Just by way of keeping in practice, and in order not to break in on Hendryx's pleasant afternoon of tripling the Birds registered two more in the eighth. Moran's triple and an infield out counted the lone run for the Crackers in the fifth.

The Crackers go back at them today, and the chances are that "Lindy" Hiett will be called on to start the first piece of defensive operations. One good one and two bad ones is the count on "Lindy" to date.

If he can come through with the brand of stuff exhibited in the first game of the season in Mobile, the locals carry an excellent chance of upsetting the verdict. If he shows the line of goods exhibited on the second trip to Mobile, or in the game he worked here against Ponce de Leon against the Pels, good night; here's hoping he's due for an even break on the good and bad dates.

Mercer Here to Meet Jackets

The Jackets' baseball team begins this afternoon at Grant field its last series of the season, except for the windup with Georgia which begins here next week. The opposition today and tomorrow will be afforded by Coach Fred Robins' Mercer boys. These two games were originally scheduled for play at Macon, but difficulties on part of the Baptists in securing the park in that city made it necessary to transfer the game here.

The Baptists have played four games with Georgia, winning one and losing one in Macon, and dropping both contests in Athens. The games with Tech will therefore afford a kind of line on the chances of the Jackets and the Georgians in the big series a bit later. Mercer has a strong team this season, with two promising good hurlers in Stevens and Hunt. The former was good enough to win from Vanderbilt despite the fact that the Commodore pitcher held teammates to no hits, while Hunt is still remembered here for the fine game he hurled against Tech last season.

Coach Heisman has not announced which of his first string hurlers he will use in the opener, but it is likely that Jim Senter will get the opening assignment with Bryant finishing Saturday.

Following is the probable line up:

TECH.		MERCER.

Merkle Hurt in Fielding Wild Heave

NEW YORK, April 30.—Fred Merkle, the Giants' first baseman, fell in trying to field a wild throw by Marquard in Thursday's game and dislocated his left arm. It at first was thought the arm was broken. The injury, however, is likely to keep him out of the game for several weeks.

Manager McGraw said last night that Snodgrass probably would play first base, although he has been laid up with a sore wrist.

James Thorpe, the Olympic champion, was released Thursday by the Giants to the Jersey City International league club under an optional agreement.

Whitney Beats Eddie Hanlon in 10-Round Mill

Local Welter Unable to Get by Frank's Defense--Latter All but Scored Kayo in Final Round--Budd and Young Go Ten Rounds to a Draw

By Innis Brown

Twenty rounds of boxing that deserved a great deal more than it got in the way of financial support was exhibited at the Bijou theater Thursday night, when Frank Whitney landed a decision over Eddie Hanlon and Battling Budd and Kid Young went ten rounds to a draw. The decision in each case was properly called.

The bout between Whitney and Hanlon proved even more furious than had been anticipated, and if anything was a more lively affair than the Whitney-Abel scrap a few weeks ago. Frank won by a good wide margin, and but for the fact that a wild swing in the last round, delivered by Hanlon in a fit of despoudon unfortunately caught Frank low, and all but put him out, the chances are that he would have stopped Hanlon in that last stanza.

Whitney's knowledge of the game was too much for the local product. Eddie found it very difficult to land cleanly on Whitney, and except for the time when he was hooking him in with an anchor hold under Frank's left shoulder with his right hand, he really landed no more than four or five clean punches during the melee. In the fourth round Hanlon got over his celebrated right to the jaw at free range, but Whitney did not go down, as had been predicted by some before the battle. Instead, he came in close and proceeded to work his short uppercuts to Hanlon's jaw rapidly.

After the first one or two rounds it was apparent that Hanlon's only hope to land the verdict lay in his chances of working his powerful right. He was a shade faster with his left jab with his fist, and was also trying to swing it in an uppercut, but Whitney was too wary, and never left an opening for either of these blows. Hanlon hurt his chances by coming into frequent clinches, where Whitney easily had the better of the infighting. He would have fared better had he stood off and taken more punches at a distance with the hope of landing his right kick once or twice. Eddie was very groggy at the finish, and, as stated above, the chances are that Whitney could have stopped him in the last round, had not a wild windmill swing caught Frank low just about the time Eddie began to look groggy.

Budd and Young put up a hustling ten-round battle. The two youngsters, meeting for the second time, lost no time in getting down to business. Both showed a willingness to mix it at all times, and the crowd was kept in a continual uproar. Voluminous protests went up over the decision, but Fuzzy Woodruff had the call right when he announced a draw. Budd had all the best of the early rounds, and had the bout been stopped at the end of the sixth, there is no doubt but that he would have had the decision by an easy margin. But Young rallied strongly in three of the last four rounds, taking the seventh, ninth and tenth by an easy count.

As yet nothing has been said of the other act on the card, a six-round go between Charlie Moore, a big husky brunette and Greek Blondy, a low squat youth with a flaxen thatch. This was probably the best serio-comic ever staged in a local ring. Serious it was because this blond chap was as serious as a supreme court judge and as busily engaged in the work at hand as a newspaper hanger; and comic, because the bout introduced more new stuff than has been seen here for a long time.

The feature of the mill was a new punch introduced by Moore. This clip may best be described as "the hammer punch." It's delivery being much after the fashion of a carpenter hammering a nail. It was a back-hand swing, worked from the elbow out. Also a shift introduced by Blondy was a feature. It failed to net the Greek the returns, but he pulled it very seriously and religious-ly once or twice each round. It might be stated that in the final frame, he caught Moore with a stiff wallop and stretched him out for the count, assuming that Referee Woodruff was counting off the seconds which indicated that he was just as likely to jump in and give his opponent another wallop as he lay on the floor, had not the referee waved him back.

Browns Sign Hurler

DETROIT, Mich., April 30.—Manager Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Americans, announced Thursday that Ernest Koob, the promising young pitcher of the Kalamazoo Normal team, would report to the Browns June 15.

Koob pitched a ten-inning scoreless tie game against the University of Michigan yesterday. Rickey saw him pitch the game.

IN REBUTTAL.

You ask me wanly why it is
The Giants and Mackmen trail each day—
Why they no longer rise and whizz
Amid the forefront of the fray;
I'll let it fly waist-high, old pal,
In no sense padded out or stuffed
And if I miss it will not be
The first soft chance that I have muffed.

The have good men and all of that—
They have the head and arm and eye;
They know well how to wield a bat,
Or eke to trap the buzzing fly;
They have the stuff to romp along—
Their place is not against the wall—
The other pop-eyed clubs, outclassed,
Are merely playing better ball.

THE FIRST TWO WEEKS.

Two weeks are no part of a tip-off on a pennant race scheduled to absorb the best part of six months—or the worst part, as you may care to view it.

The first two weeks of April play practically have nothing to do with the last two weeks of September ranking. And we fail to recall any two starting weeks that carried as many upheavals as these last two have.

SURPRISE AND SUCH.

There have been five surprises developed at the lowest count. The Phillies have led in upsets, with the Detroit Tigers second. And closely behind these follow the revised and re-edited Yanks. Just how long these three can maintain their status has nothing to do with the fact that so far they have looked to be the three best ball clubs in the game, where two weeks ago at least two of them were regarded as nix.

THE OTHER TWO.

But the other two from the Surprise Quintet have shown even more startling stuff. No one expected either Giants or Mackmen to rule with the old sway, but certainly no one expected them to get away on the Grand Train.

McGraw, from 1903—a matter of twelve years—never had a ball club that broke as badly over the early part of the road. And it has been at least seven years since Connie Mack had a machine as notably below flag winning standards in the early episodes of play.

HOW McGRAW FEELS.

McGraw is holding his head up, for sport has known no gamer fighter. But in his entire career he has never been as deeply worried as he is now.

He hasn't given up hope yet by a number of leagues, but he understands that conditions are far from the old days. And he also knows that the Record of Sport and Public Judgment take in no alibi, however worthy that alibi may be.

TOUGH SITUATION.

McGraw, through no fault of his, is up against the roughest situation that ever confronted any manager—barring one or two who became entangled with the Red and Browns.

Last June he had a ball club out in front. The Feds began their raids, and to protect himself he had to sign his men to non-release long term contracts or lose them. He had no way of knowing that a club that had won three flags and was still leading was on the verge of slipping. They don't grow that wise in human mold. When they know you've got to be angels.

Having signed up his men to protect himself and the league, several of the Giants began to sag, and then the N. L. came in with an edict that only twenty-one men could be carried—which meant that McGraw had to retain at least seventeen members of his cast, with no chance left to start rebuilding.

POOR ECONOMY THIS.

This twenty-one player limit was supposed to be in the way of economy. Suppose the Giants break as other star machines have broken—suppose they slip for good? McGraw can't rebuild, for he can't release any veterans under their contracts, and he can't add youngsters, for he can now carry only twenty-one men.

He will be cornered without having a chance to fight. There is no move he can make. And yet some six or seven National League magnates call this economy. Where will the economy come in if the Giants stay in last place and mid-week crowds drop from 8,000 to 1,500, while Saturday crowds slump from 25,000 to 8,000?

The other clubs get their share of this kale. If the Giant slump continues the loss will be as much theirs as Harry Hempstead's, who fought the plan. And the so-called economy will cost seven other clubs about $20,000 apiece—net. Which is not our idea of economy.

So, as the saying is supposed to be, holding no brief for McGraw, no one can charge any poor 1915 showing to his account. A man may be a good fighter, but if you back him up against the wall and take his ammunition away, about the only move left is to fall forward after the firing squad has done its work.

WINNERS AND LOSERS

The Giants-Braves game developed the sensation of the season, when the latter refused to play ball with Benny Kauff, a Federal league jumper in the former's line-up. Umpire Quigley first declared the game forfeited to the Giants, but after communication with President Tener ordered it played with Kauff out of the line-up.

Only seven innings could be played, what with the late start and the heavy hitting and run scoring of the two teams. Sherwood Magee smashed out two triples and a double, Jack Murray a homer, a triple and a single, and Ted Cather had a homer and two singles. The Braves used three hurlers, while Marquard stood the Boston bombardment single handed.

A ninth inning rally enabled Cleveland to trim the White Sox, and incidentally to put an end to their long list of deaths. Eddie Cicotte was driven from the slab during the bombardment and Reb Russell succeeded him. The Sox looked bad on the bases.

Only three games were played in the National league, the Cub-Pirate affair being rained out. Yet in these games seventy-six hits were made, or a little better than twenty-five per game, including a long list of extra base swats. Fourteen apiece for the Braves and Giants tied a total of twenty-eight distributed between the Reds and Cardinals with the former having seventeen and the latter eleven.

Superior hitting failed to win for the Red Sox over the Yanks. McHale gave up eleven hits but kept them scattered in such a manner that the eight collected by his own mates scored more runs than Boston did.

Tris Speaker pulled a clever piece of fielding in the second inning of this game. He purposely dropped a fly by McHale, then threw to second in time to force Nunamaker, and McHale, who failed to run the hit out, was doubled at first by Wagner.

Bernie Boland pitched his third straight victory for the Tigers. He was opposed by Earl Hamilton for the Browns, who was pitching his first game since his injury in an auto smashup last fall. The Browns got by seven hits and two runs off Boland.

Alabama Wins Second From Tigers

UNIVERSITY, Ala., April 30.—Pitcher Wikle hurled an excellent game Thursday afternoon and Sewanee never had a chance with Alabama. The score was 4-2. Both Wikle and Riner essayed the strikeout stunt, the former getting twelve and the latter ten. This makes forty times that the pitchers have mowed 'em down in the two-game series. In these two stars Smith and Wikle, the two Alabama pitchers, have allowed but seven hits and three runs. They are credited with twenty-one strikeouts.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Johnny Kilbane, world's champion featherweight, out pointed Benny Leonard, of New York, in six rounds of a ten-round bout here Thursday. Kilbane had the advantage in the first, fifth, eighth and ninth rounds. Kilbane was easily the victor in the other six.

Jump to Keep Kauff on Bench For Long Time

Organized Forces Rule Him Ineligible to Play With the Giants, and Federals Place Him on Suspended List. Player Claims He Has Not Signed With Brookfeds

CHICAGO, April 30.—Placed under indefinite suspension, Benny Kauff, the Brooklyn Federal league player who jumped to the New York Nationals yesterday, apparently will have no chance to play in either league, President Gilmore, of the Federal league, said today.

Kauff was suspended by the Federal league president after a conference over the long distance telephone with Robert B. Ward, president of the Brooklyn club, to which Kauff belonged.

"It looks to me," Gilmore said, "as if organized ball, or at least Manager McGraw, of the New York club, had made a mistake. There isn't a chance for McGraw to play Kauff, because he is not only tied up to the Brooklyn Federal league team by the reserve clause in the contract, but he is an outlawed player according to the rules of organized baseball, and New York couldn't use him without breaking the agreement under which baseball exists."

President Gilmore said that immediate steps had been taken through New York attorneys to prevent Kauff from playing should the New York club attempt to start him in a game.

President Johnson, of the American league, said Kauff would be ineligible with any team in organized ball, and under the rules could not be reinstated for three years.

Ten thousand dollars and two players to be decided on later was the price the New York Nationals were to pay to the Indianapolis American association club for the services of Outfielder Benny Kauff, provided the player could be cleared and played by New York this season.

Manager Jack Hendricks of the Indianapolis team, owner of the club in Louisville, gave out this information last night, saying the contract was drawn up and signed here Wednesday. During the winter Kauff made repeated requests to be signed by the Indianapolis association club, Hendricks said, but was not signed because his contract with the Indianapolis Federals was held to be binding.

Hendricks said that he had just received a telegram from Kauff saying the latter had never signed a contract with the Brooklyn Federals, and that he drafted in 1914 by the Indianapolis association club from Hartford of the Connecticut league.

Hendricks asserts that only the Indianapolis association club now has any legal claim to Kauff since the Indianapolis Federal club no longer exists.

Bullish Crop Reports and Bad Weather in Southwest Caused Advance

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, April 30.—Reports of renewed rain in the southwest imparted a firmer tone to cotton this morning and after opening at an advance of 1 to 3 points, active months sold about 10 to 10 points net higher on Liverpool buying, a moderate demand from Wall Street sources and local covering. New Orleans also bought some cotton here, but private predictions that the dry spell in the eastern belt would be broken within the next few days led to some realizing at the advance, and later fluctuations were somewhat irregular.

Another private crop report issued during the middle of the morning placed the reduction in acreage at 15.1 per cent but indicated that there would be a falling off of only 10 per cent in the use of fertilizer. These reports seemed to create little fresh interest and the market continued quiet during the middle of the day with prices ruling about 5 to 10 points net higher on apprehension of unfavorable weather in the southwestern belt.

NEW ORLEANS, April 30.—Private bureau estimates showing reductions in acreage of 15 per cent and 16.6 per cent respectively stimulated buying of cotton as soon as the market opened today. At a level of 12 to 17 points up longs turned profit takers. At noon the market was quiet and steady at a net gain of 5 to 8 points.

HAYWARD AND CLARK COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, April 30.—Precipitation over slightly less general than for portions half of Texas, but it was mostly light. Some showers in the north Louisiana and Arkansas districts, otherwise little rain is shown. Indications however are very good for general rains east of the river and the breaking of the dry spell will be known now and next Wednesday.

This takes makes the average reduction 16.6 per cent, and fertilizer reduction 30 per cent, the normal of Commerce places the average reduction at 14 per cent; fertilizer reduction 30 per cent, and says the crop on an average is two weeks late, but adds that favorable weather, a sharp correction in acreage may be necessary later on.

Liverpool showed the full decline due and closed 5 to 7 points lower, against which we show soundness over the labor situation and implied disturbances, which is favorable to mills in certain districts.

Texas advises dwell upon the widespread loss to crops by floods and excessive rains and show apprehension in regard to the weather outlook. Official records, however, show that the month of last year was heavier and started much earlier than this year and included the 31st.

The market gained about 10 points in the forenoon and being out of line with the crop and expectation of bullish mill takings in the afternoon but met with little encouragement. Liverpool which market closed flat, and from New York where feeling seems more bearish shown by the following closing figures. Leading interests idle, appear inclined to conservation and liquidation on account of unfavorable foreign financial conditions, reflected in the latest Bank of France statement and unfavorable political news. According to the London bank statement the Bank of France reserves to liabilities decreased from 18.55 to 17.87.

Trading became very quiet after the first hour, but the market is holding well around 10.36 for July and 10.28 for October.

STOCKS

Pressed Steel Car, Car Foundry, General Electric, Lehigh Valley and Gas Strong

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, April 30.—Speculation in the so-called war shares was responsible for higher prices today. Westinghouse crossing par with a gain of over 2 points, while General Electric, Pressed Steel Car and New York Air Brake were as much or more. American Can, whose earnings are being benefited by the foreign conflict, was again active. New York Central was the only standard railway issue to record material improvement, gaining 1⅜, but Missouri Pacific and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas shares reflected probable adjustment of impending obligations. Rock Island, local tractions and the copper group manifested a tendency to yield.

Westinghouse continued the dominant feature, advancing to 108, an overnight gain of ten points on dealings that exceeded the combined operations in the usual leaders. The movement otherwise was irregular.

Bonds were irregular.
